Torrential Rains Hit Area...New York City Deluged

WET MOTORIST NEEDS HELP

FLOODED HUTCHINSON PARKWAY

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS IN MANHATTAN

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON
Torrential rains whipped by gale force winds lashed the northeast including the Hudson Valley through Wednesday night leaving a wet wake of stranded cars and downed limbs.

More than five inches of rain fell in the New York metropolitan area, downing utility lines, flooding parkways and causing air, subway and train traffic delays. House trailers, light vans and some trucks were derailed on the George Washington Bridge and several other spans for about three hours because of high winds.

Close to three inches of rain fell in Ulster County during the storm period causing flooding in some low areas. Power outages due to storm severed tree limbs were reported throughout the county. Central-Hudson repair crews worked through the night restoring power in 35 areas. There was no major blackout however.

Streams were running high and muddy today as surface runoff peaked. The Wallkill River was over the road in some low flood prone areas near New Paltz. During the stormy night, a number of barricades had to be set up due to high water on highways. The intersection of Routes 28 and 212 in the Town of Shandaken was under a foot of water at the height of the downpour.

In Kingston where the official rain reading was 1.85 inches, flooding was reported at the usual trouble spots around the city. Compounding the problem were leaf clogged catch basins which were cleared by Board of Public Works crews. The Strand was barricaded late Wednesday afternoon as high tide, high winds and high water combined forces.

Mud and sand blocked Abeel Street at the city line for a time. Several trees and tree limbs were downed in the city and at Pearl Street, a large tree fell on a car.

Elsewhere in the county, rainfall amounts of 2.75 inches were reported at Cooper Lake Reservoir and at Ellenville. Other unofficial reports set rainfall close to three inches in county areas.

New York City was hardest hit by the all day rain and high winds. The storm trapped thousands in a massive traffic jam in Manhattan. Those who braved the storm on foot walked at a 45-degree angle against the wind as umbrellas twisted skyward. Many stalled cars were abandoned adding to the traffic flow woes.

One and two family homes in Ozone Park, Queens, were flooded and the elevator shaft in a six-story Manhattan building was an impromptu waterfall after water began backing up on the roof. One tenant bailed water over the side of the building with a garbage can.

More than 2,500 telephones were knocked out of service in various parts of the city and approximately 4,000 homes were blacked out in Brooklyn.

Looks to Foster 'Self-Reliance'

Nixon Sees Exciting Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon foresees an exciting second term in which he will press major reforms for a trimmer federal government and foster more self-reliance by the American people.

And he hopes, Nixon said, to lead the nation out of a crisis of the spirit "the whole era of permissiveness"—toward "a new feeling of responsibility, a new feeling of self-discipline."

The Washington Star-News quoted Nixon today on his philosophy of government and his outlook for the next four years in a copyrighted story by Garrett D. Horner, its veteran White House correspondent.

Horner interviewed Nixon at San Clemente, Calif., for nearly an hour last Sunday.

Nixon referred only briefly to the current Vietnam negotiations. "I am completely confident that we are going to have a settlement. You can bank on it," he said.

On foreign policy generally, he likewise forecast "an exciting period" ahead though not "as spectacular as the year 1972" with its Moscow and Peking summits.

He said his second term will accomplish more than the first in foreign affairs because it will build on his initial steps. He spoke for forthcoming negotiations concerning Europe, of more strategic arms cut talks with the Soviets, of a fresh effort for a Mideast settlement.

Mainly Nixon dealt with the domestic scene, indicating a conservative—he called it basically centrist—course for the next four years.

Going beyond Wednesday's White House announcement of a planned shakeup in the administration's executive staff, Nixon said:

"If you look at the Nixon proposals in the first four years ... when you look at them over the next four years, this will be known as an administration which advocated—and if we get proper support in the Congress after the election, was able to accomplish more significant reform than any administration since Franklin Roosevelt's in 1932; but in a different direction. "Roosevelt's reforms led to bigger and bigger power in Washington ...

"The reforms that we are instituting are ones which will diffuse the power throughout the country and which will make government leaner, but in a sense will make it stronger. After all, fat government is weak, weak in handling the problems."

"It is our responsibility," he said, "to find a way to reform our government institutions so that this new spirit of independence, self-reliance, pride that I sense in the American people can be nurtured."

The Star-News account quoted these highlights from Nixon's remarks:

The election—
It was settled the day Democratic Sen. George McGovern was nominated for president.

McGovern's views "probably did not represent even a majority of Democrats. They certainly represented a minority of the country."

Foreign policy—
The second round of U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—SALT—starting Nov. 22 domestic agencies is going to continue. "That is the way it is going to have to be with them or their successors."

Political campaigns—
They are too long and they "bore people to death." Shorter campaigns would be better for presidential candidates "because we don't want to wear our people down to a frazzle before they take on the awesome responsibilities of this position."

Nixon added, however, that he is very pessimistic about whether campaigns actually can be shortened as a practical matter, because they are so competitive.

Horner wrote that Nixon was perhaps most emphatic in asserting "I honestly believe that the total tax burden of the American people, federal, state and too big and it is too expensive."

local, has reached the breaking point. It can go no higher."

Presidential aides—
Some healthy "friction, competition" between presidential advisor Henry A. Kissinger and the State Department, and advisor John Ehrlichman and the State Department, is going to continue. "That is the way it is going to have to be with them or their successors."

Domestic policy—
He will "shuck off" and "trim down" social programs set up in the 1960s that he considers massive failures largely because they just "threw money at the problems."

Taxes—
"There will be no solutions of problems that require a tax increase ...

"I am convinced that the total tax burden of the American people, federal, state and too big and it is too expensive."

Peace Session in Paris... Reds Issue Weapons Charge

PARIS (UPI) — The Vietnamese Communists charged today the United States is pouring weapons into South Vietnam on an unprecedented scale. U.S. peace negotiator William J. Porter said the deliveries will be stopped when a cease-fire is reached.

The Viet Cong Foreign Minister, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, told the 166th peace talks session:

"The United States is pouring into South Vietnam massive additional arms supplies and materials on an unprecedented scale—especially tanks and heavy weapons."

She said the U.S. military was airlifting 1,500 tons of war materiel daily.

"This is similar to what you are seeking to do for your own forces," Porter said. "We see in these supply efforts a state of affairs which would be halted by both sides as soon as a final agreement is reached."

"Therefore ... the provisions of that agreement would apply."

Porter said at the doorstep of the Kleber Avenue negotiating hall "ha" President Nixon's overwhelming re-election had strengthened his negotiating hand, adding with a broad smile: "Every day, peace comes perceptibly nearer."

Madame Binh accused the United States of deliberately putting off signing of the peace draft, negotiated secretly by White House aide Henry A. Kissinger, to strengthen the Saigon regime.

She said that according to information from Saigon, "a giant airlift" has been set up between the U.S. Pacific Coast and American bases in Southeast Asia which was funneling 1,500 tons of military hardware to South Vietnam daily. Madame Binh demanded the immediate resignation of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, labelling him "the man who sabotages a correct settlement."

Porter earlier said he believed the peace talks were entering their final stage.

"We reaffirm our good faith as we approach what we believe can be the final stage of our negotiations," Porter said. "When we sign an agreement, we will scrupulously observe all its provisions in the expectation that you will do likewise."

Porter, in a resolutely optimistic mood, said the United States hoped the Communists would refrain from making public statements that would hamper the talks now, "when we hope to achieve so much with you. No one hopes for an end to the war more fervently than we do."

Porter walked into the conference meeting telling newsmen President Nixon's reelection had enhanced hopes of a Vietnam peace.

He described Nixon's vote as a "massive endorsement" of Washington's Vietnam policies and said "with every passing day, peace comes perceptibly nearer."

At the 25-foot-wide conference table, Porter told North Vietnamese negotiator Nguyen Minh Vy and Viet Cong Foreign Minister Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh: "With a display of goodwill and effort by both sides, we can achieve a settlement that will endure."

As he entered the 166th session of the peace talks Porter said, "The U.S. delegation is very much invigorated by the massive endorsement of President Nixon's Vietnam policies."

"We are going into the meeting not in any contentious spirit but with a determination to continue our efforts and with the conviction that with every passing day, peace comes perceptibly nearer."

Gen. Haig in Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — The chief aide to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger flew to Saigon today to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu on his objections to the language of a proposed Vietnam peace settlement.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig was expected to meet Friday with Thieu. The White House announcement of his departure said he would return Saturday or Sunday.

Thieu is concerned that a heretofore unpublished passage in the agreement would create a coalition government in disguise—something he has steadfastly refused to accept. Only a summary of Paragraph 4 was included in a Hanoi Radio cease-fire agreement broadcast Oct. 26 and in Kissinger's news conference later that day. Neither revealed the semantic questions raised by the Vietnamese text.

The full paragraph was never published, possibly because as Kissinger said, "there are linguistic problems" to be worked out with the North Vietnamese. But the paragraph in question, as paraphrased, reads:

"... An administrative structure called the National Council of National Reconciliation and Concord of three equal segments will be set up to promote the implementation of the signed agreements by the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam and the government of the Republic of South Vietnam and to organize the general elections."

"We reaffirm our good faith as we approach what we believe can be the final stage of our negotiations," Porter said. "When we sign an agreement, we will scrupulously observe all its provisions in the expectation that you will do likewise."

Porter, in a resolutely optimistic mood, said the United States hoped the Communists would refrain from making public statements that would hamper the talks now, "when we hope to achieve so much with you. No one hopes for an end to the war more fervently than we do."

ROSENDALE

The Rosendale Town Board held a public hearing Wednesday night and unanimously adopted a budget for 1973 that shows a $37,935 increase over the 1972 total of $164,835.

Rosendale's budgets are broken down into two sections—highway and general (a total of $155,825 will be spent next year) and various special appropriations in the town for fire districts and the High Falls Light and Park District totaling $46,935 next year.

Bids were received on a sand spreader and a new dump truck with a plow. Ralph C. Herman of Marlborough bid $3,674 on the sand spreader with Capital Highway Material Inc. of Putnam County bidding $3,425. DiMiccio Motors of Kingston bid $14,623 on the dump truck, allowing a $3,123 trade-in on the town's 1968 truck. (Town officials noted that the town truck is a 1958 model, not a 1968.) Johnson Ford of Route 28 bid $14,001 on the dump truck and allowed a trade-in of $2,809 on the town's 1958 truck. The town board will meet tomorrow night to award bids. It was also announced that a bid of $3,500 from Johnson Ford for a new police car had been accepted.

The new budget provides for salary raises for most town officials and employees. The supervisor will get an increase of $200 to $3,500; the two councilmen will get a $120 raise each to $1,200 each; the clerk to the supervisor goes from $900 a year to $1,000; the town clerk goes from $4,420 to $4,700; the tax collector goes from $1,000 a year to $1,150; the town welfare officer goes from $1,000 a year to $1,200; one town the two boards would try to avoid some of the problems that have reportedly arisen in other Ulster County towns that attempted to regulate mobile home sites. He said he felt confident that the two boards could work out a solution that would protect the interests of all town residents.

A public hearing is set for Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. in the town clerk's office to review proposed changes in the town's zoning ordinance.

Freer read several letters from town residents at the town board meeting Wednesday night objecting to the state's plan for establishing a detour around the Rondout Creek Bridge when it is required next spring. Freer said he has been notified by Governor Rockefeller's office that a petition objecting to the repairs to the bridge had been received. More than 3,000 Esopus residents signed the petition, Freer said.

Freer also reported that he had been informed by the Department of Transportation that plans for the Kingston-Esopus Arterial Bridge would be drawn up as soon as federal clearance and a commitment of federal funds is obtained. The arterial would divert Route 9W traffic away from Port Ewen and put it into Kingston over a bridge in the Sleighsburg area. The arterial concept has been strongly supported by Esopus residents, Freer said.

Several residents complained at the town board meeting that sand from a large sandbank on Everson Street was allegedly clogging storm drains in that area whenever it rains. Freer reported that Joseph H. Clark, highway superintendent, and Chester DuMond, building inspector, had investigated the situation and had turned their findings over to Norman Kellar, town attorney, for possible legal action against owners of the sandbank.

Freer also announced two leaf collection dates for the town. Leaves put at the curb in plastic bags will be collected in the Port Ewen, Sleighsburg, and Connelly areas on Nov. 21 and in the rest of the town on Nov. 22.

The board passed a 5 p.m. curfew for Ross Park, except for the basketball and skating areas, at the request of the Recreation Commission, which reported that vandalism had been increasing there.

The Recreation Commission also reported that the winter recreation program at Ross Park would begin on Monday, Nov. 27, and continue every Monday and Tuesday throughout the winter.

Government Surveys Damage After Indians End Seizure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For six days, hundreds of war-painted, club-wielding Indians vowed to remain inside the Bureau of Indian Affairs "until the death" to win demands for justice from the federal government.

On the seventh day, after the national election, they rested and went home—with $60,000 of government money they took there, amnesty for taking over the building and federal action to respond to their grievances within 60 days.

They came Nov. 2 on what they called a "Trail of Broken Treaties" and left Wednesday, leaving in their wake a trail of wreckage at the BIA.

"Our holding of the building, although not a complete victory, is unprecedented in history," said Indian spokesman Russell Means.

The demonstrators, at their peak numbering 1,000, made 27 demands on the government—principally an end to bureaucracy and deceit they said was cheating them of aid and treaty rights.

They got a White House promise from the government of amnesty and $60,000 in travel aid for Indians who had no means to get home.

The government, however, did not rule out prosecuting for theft of BIA materials including truckloads of documents that the Indians claimed "incriminated" the government.

Means pointed to the floors littered with papers and broken furniture and the walls stripped bare of fire extinguishers and Indian art, and said: "The Bureau of Indian Affairs no longer exists. From here we hope will arise a new kind of agency that will help the Indian people."

BIA engineering director Sandy McNabb explained why the government did not enforce court orders for eviction.

handed down last Friday and Monday. "What this boils down to is you want another Kent State or do you want to lose your files," McNabb said.

Means said much of the destruction occurred when the Indians prepared for possible police action and broke furniture to make weapons for their defense.

Interior Department officials will make an assessment of the damage today.

The last scene for the Indians came when a man with a black briefcase appeared next to Indian leader Vernon Bellecourt.

Bellecourt was arranging travel for the last dozen or so stragglers.

The man with the briefcase was handing out crisp $20 and $100 bills to the needy—courtesy of the U.S. government which the Indians had accused of paternalism and bureaucracy.

U.S. Bombers Rip North Viet Convoys

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers dumped thousands of tons of bombs on North Vietnamese southbound convoys Wednesday night and early today in a continuation of the most concentrated American aerial attacks of the Vietnam War.

Military sources said the campaign was designed to blunt a last-ditch drive by the North Vietnamese to move men and military equipment into South Vietnam before a cease-fire banning such movement.

The United States also was trying to rush war materiel in before such a deadline. American military transports and chartered civilian jetliners conducted their biggest airlift to Indochina in more than four years to strengthen South Vietnam's armed forces.

Military sources said shipment of U.S. planes, tanks and other supplies go on for at least another week.

The three-day-old campaign by B52s was concentrated in Quang Tri Province and inside the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), U.S. command spokesmen said.

Between noon Tuesday and midday today, at least 54 waves of the eight-engine B52s—each with an average three planes—dropped nearly 4,860 tons of bombs in that area. Twenty-three multipassenger raids were flown Wednesday night and today.

Thirty F5 Freedom Fighter jets "borrowed" from Iran have already been flown to South Vietnam in giant C5A Galaxy transport planes, the sources said. Another 90 from South Korea and Taiwan will be flown in soon.

Tanks, armored personnel carriers, guns, bombs and ammunition were pouring into the Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport and nearby Bien Hoa airbase, the sources said. It was the largest U.S. airlift since 9,500 Marines and paratroopers were rushed to South Vietnam on 48 hours notice in the 1968 Tet offensive.

Fifty U.S. fighter-bombers from a carrier and bases in Thailand hit North Vietnam Wednesday despite bad weather caused by Typhoon Pamela. B52s also hit the north.

'Fragging' Case Testimony Ends

FT. ORD, Calif. (UPI) — Seven Army officers who will judge Pvt. Billy D. Smith at his "fragging" court-martial called him back to the stand for one question Wednesday after eight weeks of testimony came to an end.

They had Smith repeat his story about his activities on March 15, 1971, when a fragmentation grenade explosion killed two officers at Bien Hoa Army base in Vietnam. One was Lt. Thomas Delvo of Mechanville, N.Y.

Smith, 24, of Los Angeles, the first GI to be tried in the United States for a Vietnam "fragging," appeared surprised when the panel huddled and decided he was the only witness it wanted to question.

"Where were you and what happened from chow time until the formation," asked Maj. Floyd Smith of the jury.

The private repeated the story he told while testifying for more than four hours last week—that he went into Bien Hoa, returned to his barracks at dark to drink beer and play records, then went to a bunker about midnight with two friends to smoke marijuana until they were ordered into a formation following the fatal grenade blast.

The single question to Smith was the only one asked by the court-martial jury, which will receive the case after Col. Rawls Frazier, the military judge, gives them his instructions today and the prosecution and defense sum up their cases.

Defense attorney Luke McKissack rested his case Wednesday without calling three rebuttal witnesses he had sought during a 24-hour delay in the trial. Frazier then asked the jury if it wanted to call any witnesses and it asked the single question.

The military judge met with attorneys for the rest of the day to work out his instructions to the jury of five white and two black officers.

Extremists Beat Girl

BELFAST (UPI) — Extremists beat up a 13-year-old Protestant girl, shaved her head and dumped her in a Belfast street today because she talked to a group of British soldiers, the army said.

An Ulster militia officer was shot and killed in a suspected Irish Republican Army (IRA) ambush Wednesday night.

The girl was found outside the headquarters of the 1st Queen's Regiment and taken to a hospital, a spokesman said. The army said she was attacked because she was seen talking to a British patrol in the New Lodge area Wednesday.

An Ulster militia officer died in an apparent ambush Wednesday, but British security officials said mounting arrests of IRA men spell the eventual collapse of the guerrilla group.

British security officials said today they have arrested 164 IRA men since Aug. 1 and predicted the eventual collapse of the guerrilla organization.

The shooting of Erwin Long, a 29-year-old second lieutenant in the Ulster Defense Regiment, raised the overall death toll in just over three years of Northern Ireland violence to 626.

Witnesses said machine-gun fire from a car hit Long in the head as he drove home from work in the County Armagh town of Lurgan, 23 miles south of Belfast. Long's car spun out of control and collided with two other cars, injuring one of the drivers.

"It was a well planned ambush, almost certainly IRA," a British army officer said.

A few hours later, a gunman ambushed a security forces vehicle on the Irish Republic border, wounding a policeman in the back.

Despite the shootings and bombings, British security officials said they believe they are defeating the IRA. The organization seeks to break British rule over Ulster and unite the mainly Protestant province with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

Disclosing fresh statistics, the officials said security forces have captured 164 men of the IRA's militant Provisional wing since Aug. 1, the day British troops occupied former IRA "no-go" strongholds in the Catholic areas of Londonderry and Belfast.

Estimated IRA strength in Belfast has slumped from 1,400 at the beginning of the year to 350, now, the officials said.

The latest arrests followed the bombing Wednesday of a suburban Belfast supermarket. Security officials said troops seized two IRA suspects, one of them an explosives expert.

Other explosions Wednesday ripped Londonderry's Broomhill House hotel, the only major hotel still operating in the city, and two gasoline stations in Lisburn, southwest of Belfast. Warnings were telephoned before the explosions and there were no casualties.

'New Look' at Reforms

Disenchanted Dems... Revolution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Disenchanted Democrats whispered or shouted today of a counter-revolution against both the movement which led to a landslide loss in Tuesday's presidential election and the McGovern drive to overhaul the national party.

They did not talk of reversing the irreversible reform campaign set in motion by the disorder of the 1968 convention and the left-wing triumph at the 1972 convention.

But they did speak of taking a new look at the reforms, of moving the party back toward the middle-of-the-road and of displacing Mrs. Jean Westwood, presidential nominee George S. McGovern's choice for the national party chairmanship.

This talk coincided with a warning from an old pro, Lawrence F. O'Brien, that the party must avoid "rancor, blood-letting and Monday morning quarterbacking" arising from President Nixon's crushing defeat of McGovern. "We mustn't fall into that trap," he said.

Among the first to call for the replacement of Mrs. Westwood were Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Govs. David Hall of Oklahoma and Wendell H. Ford of Kentucky. Without naming anyone, Gov.

Marvin Mandel of Maryland said some party leaders should be thinking about stepping down.

Joseph F. Crangle, New York state chairman who would be available to head the national party, refused to speculate about the possibility of unseating Mrs. Westwood but said, "We don't have to reform, we have to revive."

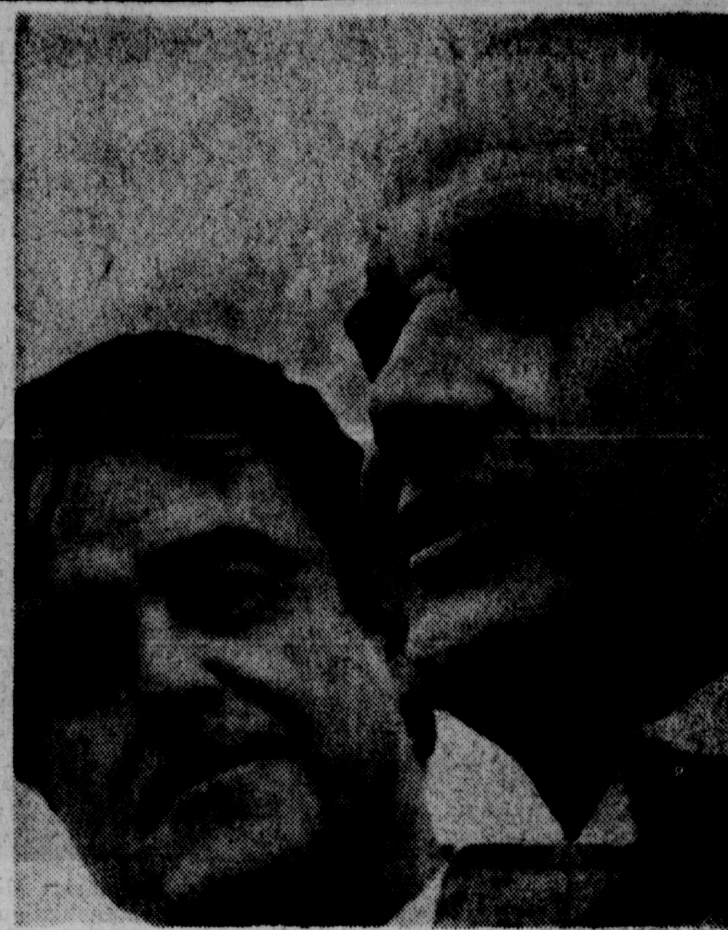

Oklahoma Hall said he already had talked with a number of governors and senators and felt sure that "there will be a move to bring a centrist in to replace Mrs. Westwood in the next two weeks."

He predicted that the Nixon administration would lose popularity during its final two years and that, while Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts would figure as a potential candidate in 1976, senators no longer would monopolize competition for the presidential nomination.

O'Brien called Nixon's landslide "an aberration, an occurrence of the moment" and not "a final irrevocable development on the part of Democrats to commit their lives and their children's lives to the Republican party." His comments were made in an interview with UPI reporter George J. Marder.

The national committee meeting here Dec. 9 perhaps may bring a showdown over replacing Mrs. Westwood, who is reported ready to fight to hold her job. Her survival would depend much on McGovern's attitude, and her retention probably would bring a party blood-letting.

Besides Crangle, one party source said Robert Strauss, former party treasurer, and retiring Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri are being discussed for the chairmanship. The selection of either of those two could push McGovern's left-wing backers toward formation of a new liberal party.

RULES OUT RUNNING AGAIN—Sen. George S. McGovern returned to Washington ruling out another bid for the presidency in 1976 but telling his supporters that their cause "was just as bright as it ever was." At left is his running mate, Sergeant Shriver. (UPI)

Goals Charted for 93rd Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assured of continued House and Senate control despite President Nixon's landslide, Democrats today charted goals for the 93rd Congress—including tax reform, consumer protection, national health insurance and a boost in the minimum wage.

They said the first votes in the new Congress, which convenes Jan. 3 to spend its first month organizing, likely will come on efforts to pass again—over a presidential veto if necessary—some of the bills Nixon killed by pocket veto after the 92nd Congress adjourned.

With the election behind them, the Democrats also kicked off a contest for House majority leader, in the probable event that the current leader, Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., is dead. Boggs and Rep. Nick Begich, D-Alaska, have been missing since their plane disappeared over Alaska on Oct. 16.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., now the party whip in the House, and Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., a five-term southern liberal, were reported sounding out fellow members, seeking support for the post.

A rumored challenge to Speaker Carl Albert had not materialized. Most members now believed Albert, after one term in the highest elective office held by a Democrat, would be picked without opposition at a pre-session caucus for another two years as speaker.

Near-final returns from Tuesday's balloting showed the Democrats had staved off the Nixon avalanche to pick up two seats in the Senate and to lose no more than 12 or 13 in the House. Thus they maintained Democratic congressional control unbroken since 1954.

In retrospect, Republicans said Nixon already could claim a pretty fair "philosophical majority" in the House, where a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats traditionally have been able to win.

As for the Senate, they conceded that it now takes on a somewhat more liberal hue. But they said Nixon's historic win over George S. McGovern must have carried shock waves to Capitol Hill—and that Nixon now should get better support.

Both President Nixon and key Democratic lawmakers have pledged to make tax reform—sometimes called "loophole closing"—a priority matter next year.

O'Neill also listed for major attention of the new Congress some form of national health insurance; additional consumer protection; more aid for mass transit; a new money bill for health, education and welfare.

to replace one vetoed by Nixon as the old Congress died; and re-passage of another vetoed bill to improve veterans' medical care.

Because of sensitivity over the continued missing status of Boggs, and the waning possibility he and Begich still might be rescued, both O'Neill and Gibbons delayed announcing publicly for the leadership post. However it was learned that other Democrats had received solicitations from both members. Gibbons called a news conference for noon EST Friday, presumably to make his announcement.

State GOP Boss Resigns Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—State Republican Chairman Charles T. Lanigan, who helped lead the GOP to some of its biggest election triumphs in the last three years, has unexpectedly declared his resignation.

Governor Rockefeller's office announced Wednesday night Lanigan has asked to step down

Jan. 1 to become a vice president for Metropolitan Life Insurance.

A spokesman for the Republican State Committee said a successor would probably be chosen at a meeting Nov. 20, with the location yet to be chosen.

Lanigan, who lives in the Albany suburb of Glenmont, was reported stranded by the weather in New York City and was not immediately reached for comment.

In his letter to Rockefeller, the 47-year-old former Rome mayor said he was leaving for "personal and family considerations."

Lanigan, a well-built man who keeps his hair short, took the chairmanship in June 1969, after serving as Rockefeller's director of planning coordination, following an unsuccessful race against Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

He was instrumental in the landslide win for the Rockefeller team in November, 1970, although losing the senate seat to Conservative James L. Buckley and failing again to unseat Levitt.

This fall, he was part of the effort behind President Nixon's sweep of the state and GOP gains in the legislature.

Lanigan lost his battle at this year's Republican convention to win more delegates for New York and other populous states for the 1976 convention.

Voting Machines, Ballots Ordered Impounded

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) — More than 400 voting machines and an undetermined number of absentee ballots were ordered impounded pending completion of a recount in the 23rd Congressional District Wednesday at the request of former Rep. Richard Ottinger, who apparently lost a comeback campaign fight against Rep. Peter Peyer.

Ottinger, a Democrat-Liberal, lost to Republican-Conservative Peyer by an unofficial 1,246 votes of the 195,626 cast in the district, which combines parts of Westchester and the Bronx.

The Westchester County Board of Elections said a final tally of the absentee ballots, many of which were not counted, and a recheck of the voting machines were not expected to be completed until next week.

Paltz Budget Hearing... Questions

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ The preliminary 1973 budget for the Town of New Paltz received a public hearing Wednesday night, with most of the questions on the proposed budget being asked by a New Paltz Village trustee looking out for his constituents' interests.

About 25 people attended the hearing. One of them, local resident Louis Fagon, assigning compassion for taxpayers to the wet Wednesday atmosphere, said "The heavens went all day for the people of New Paltz."

The preliminary 1973 budget is up more than $120,000 over the budget adopted for 1972. The 1972 budget showed a total appropriation of $520,863, including special districts; the proposed 1973 budget has an appropriations total of $644,339. The amount to be raised by taxes is a proposed $476,820, about $100,000 higher than the 1972 figure; initial figures show a tax increase of $10-$15 per thousand of assessed valuation.

The biggest single increases in the budget are for the highway department, which will receive about $50,000 more for 1973 according to the preliminary figures, and the town police, proposed to go from 1972's $89,789 to $123,405 for 1973.

About $10,000 of the highway department increase is to go toward the extension of Fulton Road, according to Supervisor Theodore Lasher, and Councilman Dominick Sregola said much of the rest would go to upgrading the town's roads by such means as macadam surfacing. The town is growing, and the town's roads are showing the wear from the increased traffic.

According to Police Director John F. Taylor, a big share of the police department increase will be $21,000 in raises for his men, to bring them closer in line with the salaries of the village police force.

Village trustee John Logan asked about a letter the village board had sent the town board requesting the village be relieved of paying highway expenses in the town. The village used to be excused from show removal expenses, but a State Audit and Control decision said the village could not be partially relieved of an expense; it had to be relieved of an entire highway expense item or none of it.

According to the 1973 preliminary budget, the village would only be exempt from paying for Item One, repairs and improvements, which is specified by state law.

Lasher said the board was still considering the village's letter.

Logan also questioned a number of other budget items, including the highway superintendent's salary, street lighting, the dog warden, and the sharing of Emergency Employment Act funds between the town and the village. He said a larger share of the employment funds should go to the village than the town, and the other items should generally be a town expense.

He also asked Lasher about his salary. In the proposed budget, the supervisors' salary would go from $7,000 to $12,000, and the personal services expense of the office from $8,500 to $15,500.

Lasher said he would earn the money by being on the job full time. He recently replaced former Supervisor Anthony J. Moriello, who resigned to take a state job. Logan also asked about the apparent violation of the wage-price guidelines in the raise, and was told by Town Attorney Wendell Harp that a verbal clearance had been received from the Internal Revenue Service.

The town board now has until

Nov. 20 to make any revisions in the budget and adopt it. No items in the preliminary budget can be raised.

In the regular meeting following the hearing, the board rejected the application for a planned unit development by New Paltz Growers Inc., because a large apartment zone was not in the PUD and the maps and application were not in order. This was the second rejection for PUG.

The highway department received an additional $20,000 transfer from the highway capital reserve; $17,000 had been previously transferred.

Onteora 'Open House' Tonight

BOICEVILLE

The annual "open house" for the Ontario Central Senior High School will be held tonight from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The program will emphasize the meeting of the faculty, display of curricular materials, an explanation of individual curricular programs, and the display of student works. Refreshments will be served in the high school cafeteria during the evening. Members of the National Honor Society will serve as guides, during the evening.

The open house program will provide time for individual parent conferences. Those parents requesting conferences may make appointments that night or to call the high school and inform the office of specific conference requests.

Wednesday, Nov. 15 will be an early closing day at the Junior-Senior High School. Students will be dismissed at 11 a.m. Teachers in grades 7-12 will be available for parental conferences from 12 noon until 2:45 p.m. It is hoped that conferences would be arranged for in advance either at the open house or via a phone request prior to Nov. 15.

The first marking period ends on Friday, Nov. 10. Report cards will be distributed to all students in grades 7-12 on Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Rhinebeck Passes Budget

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Town Board Wednesday night passed a 1973 budget that will lower the tax rate for everyone in the town, provided that anticipated federal revenue sharing funds come through.

The preliminary budget presented to townspeople at a public hearing did not include this expected revenue and had town residents expecting a modest 14-cent per thousand assessed valuation tax increase. With the expected $5,000 estimated in the revenue sharing program in December, the figure will instead be lower than last year by some nine cents.

The figure given the public for village residents will remain the same, a 17-cent per thousand tax drop.

The revenue sharing funds are to be paid towns quarterly, according to a letter from the Association of Towns, and should be distributed Dec. 5. Amounts are not yet exactly known.

The Town Board also heard a letter from Trautman Associates, county-hired landfill consultants, urging the town to file notice of intent to participate in countywide landfill programs in order that surveying and engineering fees might be reimbursed to the county.

The letter said the Rhinebeck landfill site, one of the best in the area, has enough soil for years to come for a cooperative venture other county communities. The town is also exploring a joint venture with the Town of Red Hook.

Louis Asher, acting supervisor in the absence of William Allen, said that no applications would be signed now after commenting that the notice of intent does not bind the town. The matter was tabled.

An October public hearing was held on the advisability of restricting traffic on Mt. Rutsen Road, which connects with the village's Montgomery Street, to vehicles under 6,000 pounds, thus eliminating the heavy truck traffic that has been protested by homeowners in the area. The board approved this resolution unanimously.

Bids will be advertised for a new town dump truck with plow and two sanders, to be opened at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 29. The truck will replace a 1961 model which was deemed beyond salvage.

John Zappe said that the recent joint Town-Village Recreation Commission meeting had been a forum for discussion of the possibility of using Crystal Lake as an ice-skating area this winter with floodlights. And it was decided to use Holy Cross Campus indoor swimming pool and gym for some activities.

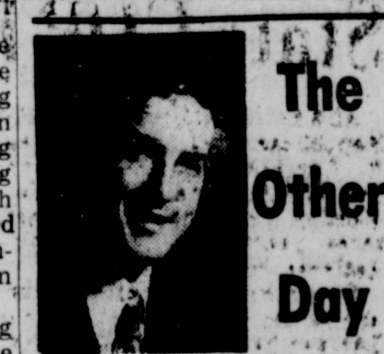

A vacancy on the Planning Board was not filled after some names had been suggested to replace Magnus Reichelt. The matter was tabled.

Mrs. Charles Richman was appointed town dog warden. Her husband is dog warden for the Town of Red Hook.

Justice DeWitt Gurnell reported that the historical brochure of the town is now at the printers and will be available shortly. He is conducting weekly Friday lectures on Rhinebeck history for the public.

A used bulldozer is expected to be delivered shortly to the town landfill site. It was purchased from State Equipment Corporation for $21,050.

Dec. 12 has been set as a date when County Executive William Bartles will meet with the public and Village of Rhinebeck officials. A letter inviting town officials to the meeting was read.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 9, 1972

WASHINGTON — With Congress out of session, it's junketing season for footloose congressmen, and our embassies around the world have been alerted to prepare for their care and feeding.

Out of political discretion, most congressmen put off their overseas trips until after the election. But now, they are preparing to take off for their favorite vacation spots in Europe and Asia—on official business, of course, so they can charge their trips to the taxpayers.

Some of the trips, no doubt, will be worthwhile. In the world outside, where much of the U.S. budget is spent, visiting congressmen have uncovered waste, have learned firsthand of needed reforms and have written appropriate legislation. They have talked directly to the people of the world.

Such trips, with split-second schedules and heavy work loads, are anything but glamorous. But most junketeers contrive to arrange their overseas business at the world's pleasure spots.

Next week, for example, three giant Air Force C-118 transport planes will haul Senate and House delegates to the North Atlantic Assembly in Bonn. The delegates will spend most of their time sightseeing, however, in such places as London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Belgrade and Sofia.

A C-118, we learned, can carry 80 passengers. Therefore, we wondered why it took three of the big planes to fly less than 40 Senate-House delegates to Europe.

Even with their wives, they should be able to squeeze into one plane.

Three Planes

It is against "Senate policy," we were told, for more than 12 senators to fly on the same plane. Thus the Senate delegates have split into two groups, one headed by Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., the other by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. The House delegates, who apparently are more expendable, will risk bunched up in a third plane.

There will be no bunched, however, after they reach Germany. Separate cars have been requested for each congressman and his wife. An urgent cable has gone out to USCINCEUR (U.S. Commander-in-Chief, Europe), spelling out the House delegates' needs:

"Request 17 military sedans and drivers be made available during Codel's visit in Bonn, Germany. (The term Codel is government jargon for congressional delegation.) Also request a 2½-ton truck meet Codel at airport for luggage and necessary assistance in baggage handling."

Members of the party will be traveling on Department of the Army orders and authorized military air, ground transportation and other logistic support to include PX and commissary facilities. Military air and ground transportation for wives of members accompanying their husbands for protocol reasons is authorized on a space available basis at no additional expense to the government.

"Please meet and render all assistance and courtesy." And this final note: "News media coverage not desired."

Representative Dave Martin, R-Neb., had a special request. The Pentagon asked "assistance in obtaining accommodations for Rep. Dave Martin and wife at the Von Steuben in Wiesbaden for 20-23 Nov., 1972, and any other necessary arrangements."

Special Tours

The House group will go on to London, Madrid, Paris and Rome. Two tours are available to the senators. "For those senators, who do not plan to depart Bonn at the close of the conference on November 24 for Washington, nor to travel with Senator Symington to Eastern Europe," advised Sparkman in a private memo to the other Senate delegates, "a European Theater plane has been scheduled to travel as follows, the purpose being to look into European security and trade issues."

The senators, accompanied by their wives, will study "trade" and "security" in such popular tourist towns as Paris, London and Dublin. Symington's party, meanwhile, will fly behind the Iron Curtain to Belgrade, Sofia, Bucharest and Prague.

Those who have signed up tentatively to fly with Sparkman are: Senators Howard Cannon, D-Nev., B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H., Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., Clifford Case, R-N.J., John Cooper, R-Ky., Marlow Cook, R-Ky., Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and Henry Bellmon, R-Okla. Of these, Kennedy, McIntyre and Hollings told us they're still undecided whether to make the trip. Jordan thinks he "probably won't go."

Signed up to fly with Symington are: Senators Frank Moss, D-Utah, Clairborne Pell, D-R.I., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., John Tunney, D-Calif., Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., Gordon Allott, R-Colo., Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Jack Miller, R-Iowa. In this group, only Pell was uncertain whether he would go.

The passenger manifest for the House trip includes: Representatives Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, chairman; Charles Chamberlain, R-Mich., Patrick Caffery, D-La., Leslie Arends, R-Ill., Peter Rodino, D-N.J., Frank Clark, D-Pa., Jack Brooks, D-Tex., Paul Findley, R-Ill., Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, Melvin Price, D-Ill., Bertram Podell, D-N.Y., Dave Martin, R-Neb., Philip Burton, D-Calif., and Robert Mathias, R-Calif.

Arends tells us he has changed his mind about going. Chamberlain has not definitely made up his mind.

We will report on other junket plans in future columns. For when congressmen talk about going to the ends of the earth to help their constituents, they are being all too literal.

regulars, deliberately alienated in instance after instance by the triumphant McGovernites following the primaries, it was Kennedy. Those ties remain strong. The rumblings of trouble within the Kennedy family over the rivalry in the future of Sargent Shriver, the brother-in-law who made a valiant try as the vice-presidential candidate, will have little bearing on 1976.

The future of the McGovern faction is the question that remains. The zealous, often far-out young who were the cheering and the heckling squads for McGovern will be deeply disillusioned. They will see the old politics triumphant. Many of them have learned by diligent effort what grass-roots politics is all about. Their hero, George McGovern, has said he will never again run for President. With the passage of time they will regroup and their hard-earned skills put to better advantage.

The Peace Pact

WASHINGTON — With the American election out of the way, the problem of peace in Vietnam will be more clearly defined. It will not be confused by political debates here or influenced by Communist propaganda which had hoped to compel the United States to reach a hasty agreement on a rather generalized document.

The proposed pact contains, of course, the basis for an understanding. But, as Secretary of State William P. Rogers has said, there is need for clarification of certain points, and this may take "several weeks." He made it clear he believes that these topics can be disposed of shortly, though conclusion of the peace negotiations will require further discussion. He declined to predict exactly when a final agreement can be attained.

It is evident, however, that the essentials now are down on paper and that the principal points on which attention will be focused are easy to select from the text. The Saigon government contends that if American troops are to be withdrawn from South Vietnam, those of North Vietnam also should be pulled out. Likewise, it wants to be sure that the cease-fire will be in effect throughout Indo-China so that it will not be threatened by Communist forces in Cambodia or Laos.

As one reads the draft of the proposed agreement, it is apparent that Secretary Rogers is right when he says that it will take "more than days" for some of the "ambiguities" to be fully worked out. But if both sides have a desire to make peace, it should not really take long to draw up a document acceptable to all parties concerned.

The important thing is that there seems to be a willingness on the part of North and South Vietnam to get a settlement. Saigon wants its security to be assured. It is anxious that there be a clarification of just what will happen with respect to the withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from its territory and the political formula to follow a cease-fire. President Nguyen Van Thieu probably will resign as president but not until the objections he has raised have been taken care of and neutral governments have given their consent to supervise the entire arrangement.

It is somewhat puzzling as to why North Vietnam was insistent that the document be signed on October 31, even if all of the details were not complete. It may be the Hanoi government thought that, at a climactic time in the midst of the American elections, President Nixon would be compelled to accept it because of the possible ill effects if he failed to do so.

Actually, the administration was not influenced by this maneuver. It feels that the South Vietnamese should be given full participation in the plan and that reaching an agreement should not be pushed for any purpose except to secure the desired results for which war has been fought these many years.

Now that the American election had taken place, there is no reason why the unsettled questions of the draft agreement for peace in Vietnam cannot be negotiated to satisfy all sides and a constructive document brought forth so that it may be signed soon. Then the fighting would stop and programs could be begun to provide the aid to Indo-China which has been planned by the United States and other countries for the people who have suffered through a long and painful war.

It is not believed that there are any matters which really present insuperable obstacles. But the time for signing the pact and declaring peace depends upon how soon North Vietnam is ready to sit down with the American negotiators and work out the language of the agreement in order to clarify its terms for all concerned.

There is confidence here in Washington that there are really no great problems or major difficulties that stand in the way of a settlement. Once this is accomplished, arrangements can be completed for the neutral governments to undertake the supervision of the cease-fire and assure Indo-China against military action of any kind.

The Saigon government is prepared to sign the agreement as soon as all the details are clarified, but it might take, as Secretary Rogers says, several weeks for this to be done. Peace is indeed "in sight." It comes after election in the United States because there is no political factor involved, as the American people support the idea that President Nixon is doing his utmost to see that not only are American troops and prisoners brought home but the war in Vietnam is truly ended.

50 Years After Mussolini

Could it happen again? As this question was debated in Italy 50 years after Mussolini's black shirt fascists marched on Rome, some Italians see parallels between the chaotic months before the March on Rome and Italy's present condition.

Then as now, the nation was racked by strikes, the economy was floundering and the great middle classes were baffled and pessimistic. The political leadership had lost confidence in itself, just as today's leadership shows little assurance. Bands of political adversaries clashed in the streets of Italian cities in the fall of 1922 as in the fall of 1972.

However, the violence 50 years ago was more deadly. Hardly a day passed without killings. Italy was actually on the brink of a civil war. The worst that happens now is terrorist bombings, wildcat strikes, the roughing-up of plant executives and foremen, and scuffles between rightist and leftist extremists, rarely resulting in more damage than blacked eyes.

Count Grandi, an early Mussolini stalwart now 76, said in an anniversary comment that the main factor that brought about the March on Rome was "the indecorous cowardice exhibited by democracy in Parliament and in the country." Many Italian democrats today fear that prolonged political instability, accompanied by disruptive strikes and mounting violence, might make an authoritarian power grab overwhelmingly tempting.

There are many reasons for the almost general belief that the democratic system still has a broad margin for improvement and consolidation. One is that almost all the leaders of the military forces lack political ambition. Another, and perhaps the most important, is that fortunately Italy lacks a charismatic demagogue of Mussolini's stature. Nor are World War II veterans looking for a leader as World War I did, who backed Il Duce. Italy's political leaders, from the far right to the far left, are gray, unloved by their rank and file and often mistrusted by their associates.

Fortunately, there is no immediate prospect for a return of fascism, or of a Communist takeover, in a major country such as Italy. Either would usher in totalitarianism, from the right or left, and create a tragedy for Italy and the world.

Feeding Shapes Adults

Mothers should not overfeed their infants thinking that fat babies are healthy babies. This is the crux of findings of a study in nutrition by Dr. Norman Kretchner, professor of pediatrics at Stanford University. He has determined that how a mother feeds her infant during the first year of his life may be crucial in determining how healthy he will be when he grows up.

The study of human nutrition is revealing new information that may drastically change the way physicians have viewed the eating needs of infants. For instance, fat babies tend to have obesity problems as adults whereas thin babies do not; babies who are fed large amounts of sugar may have a tendency, as adults, to develop heart trouble more readily than people who were not fed sugar; what is good for adults may be terrible for babies.

Experiments revealed that the number and size of the fat cells in the body are established early in life. When a too fat baby slims down into a skinny child, he will still have the same high number of cells capable of storing fat. At adulthood, the child still has the built-in potential of becoming obese. To remain thin and healthy, he must somehow avoid stoking up his cells to full capacity.

What exactly stimulates the proliferation of fat cells in the body during the first year of life? When scientists discover that, then a treatment may be devised for the problem.

Look to Teddy in 1976

WASHINGTON — Through-out the intolerably long, repetitive, unresponsive campaign now ended one constant has varied hardly at all. Sen. George McGovern was never able to reach beyond the constituency, the minority of the young, the disaffected, the blacks, who in a succession of primaries gave him the Democratic nomination.

The blunders were plain, beginning with the Eagleton tragedy and running through the candidate's indecision. His managers often seemed to be working at cross-purposes and with faulty judgment. But that was irrelevant to the basic fact that neither his personality nor what he had to say carried any weight with the mass of the voters. He is a rural populist with no trace of the urban experience that is today's common denominator.

Doleful predictions, with great crocodile tears shed by the Republicans, have heralded the breakup of the Democratic coalition put together by FDR. Organized labor is gone. The ethnics are gone. The city machines are in dissolution. Thus runs the dirge recited over and over as the polls added up to unfailing adversity.

For the present election all this is true. But for the future, in my opinion, it is nonsense. While the coalition of the past may not be reconstituted as it was before, self-interest alone will bring the component parts together. Humpty Dumpty has had a great fall, but in this instance Humpty Dumpty can be restored.

Organized labor will have the strongest possible motive to unite within the party of opposition. The loud bleating of George Meany about price increases and wage controls before the AFL-CIO decided to sit out the election will be more compelling than before. Price increases in virtually all public services, in autos and a whole range of the things that make up the household budget will spur the return of protesting laborites to the party to which they long gave allegiance.

These big price boosts will be part of the reward of the millionaires' club that poured such generous amounts into the Nixon campaign. It is impossible to believe that organized labor, the pillar of the old FDR coalition, can remain within the party of the big rich.

Consider, too, what the disappearance of George C. Wallace means. It is most unlikely that he will ever again participate in a national election. In 1968 he got 13 per cent of the vote running on his third-party ticket. In the Democratic primary in Michigan before he was seriously wounded by an assassin's bullet he pulled more than half the total vote.

His stand-in this year, John G. Schmitz, has attracted only a tiny fraction of the vote that would have gone to Wallace.

The so-called ethnic vote, exaggerated out of all proportion to its cohesiveness in the current campaign, is unlikely to stay within the confines of the Nixon party. And it should be noted that it is a Nixon, rather than "a Republican" party as one consequence of the nature of the reelection campaign.

The logical candidate for reassembling the party structure is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. He has the backing of "labor." For the young the name itself is still magic. On civil rights, he has fought consistently for every measure of equality, so the blacks cannot fault him.

Vulnerable though he is on several scores, Kennedy demonstrated his loyalty during the campaign. He appeared repeatedly with McGovern and spoke independently in state after state. If anyone could have brought the Democratic regulars, deliberately alienated in instance after instance by the triumphant McGovernites following the primaries, it was Kennedy. Those ties remain strong. The rumblings of trouble within the Kennedy family over the rivalry in the future of Sargent Shriver, the brother-in-law who made a valiant try as the vice-presidential candidate, will have little bearing on 1976.

The future of the McGovern faction is the question that remains. The zealous, often far-out young who were the cheering and the heckling squads for McGovern will be deeply disillusioned. # Six Prisoners, Ransom Given Hijackers

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Five hijackers who threatened to kill one hostage every 30 minutes until their demands were met, gained the release of six Mexican prisoners Wednesday, obtained $320,000 in ransom and forced the crew of a Mexicana Airlines jet to fly them to Havana late Wednesday.

Airline officials said the plane, its 73 passengers and seven crew members may return home today.

"The plane is still in Havana," one official said, "but we are pressing the authorities there to let it leave. It could take off at any time."

The airline did not identify passengers by nationality, but all of them bore Spanish names except for three identified only as Wesley Parsons, Charles Dill and Teddy Stefanovik.

The hijackers, describing themselves as friends of members of the "Armed Liberation Front" anti-government guerrilla organization, seized the Boeing 727 over Saltillo, about 50 miles south of the northern Mexican industrial city of Monterrey.

After forcing the plane's crew to return to Monterrey, the five spent six hours bargaining with authorities. Officials said they threatened to kill one passenger every 30 minutes unless their demands were met. Arturo Suarez, the top security officer at the scene, said the hijackers raised their demands every time previous demands were met.

Eventually, they collected the ransom and the prisoners plus two unidentified companions who flew with them to Cuba.

The six prisoners were released from jail and taken to the plane, one of them a woman who was carried aboard on a stretcher.

The six were arrested one day earlier and named as suspects in a robbery ring. Police said they also recovered $120,000 in stolen money.

Although the six robbery suspects said they were members of the "Armed Liberation Front," a government spokesman said they were not guerrillas but "just common holdup men."

Authorities bowed to the gang's demands, Attorney General Pedro Ojeda Paullada said, because the lives of passengers and crew were more important than ransom and the jailing of the six robbery suspects. The Cuban news agency Prensa Latina called the five hijackers, six prisoners and two other persons who flew with them to Cuba "political prisoners" in a report of their safe arrival in Havana.

The Prensa Latina report said only that the plane landed safely in Havana and its occupants were going through customs. The wounded girl, identified as Elena Romero de Elizondo, was taken by stretcher and ambulance to a Havana emergency hospital, the agency said.

A government spokesman said Mexico would ask Cuba to send the 13 hijackers and their associates back for trial, but said he was not sure Cuba would agree.

Skull Discovered In East Africa

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Leakey announced today the discovery of a skull in East Africa which he believes proves that human beings lived at least 2.5 million years ago, at least half a million years earlier than ever supposed before.

Richard Leakey is the son of the late Louis S. B. Leakey who found fossil remains, also in East Africa, of a two-million-year-old creature which he named homo habilis in the belief that it was the first tool-making ancestor of modern man.

The elder Leakey's explorations were conducted over many years in Olduvai Gorge in Tanzania, 500 miles south of the wind-swept, scrub-covered, bandit-infested desert east of Lake Rudolf in Kenya where his son now works.

Louis Leakey's finds, if accepted at his evaluation of them, pushed back the origin of modern man, homo sapiens, by a million years. Richard Leakey's skull adds another half million years to homo's age.

Describes Bones

Richard Leakey, administrative director of the National Museums of Kenya, described the skull and human leg bones found nearby at a scientific meeting in London.

"Preliminary comparisons with other evidence indicate," he said, "that the new material will take a central place in the rethinking and re-evaluation of the evidence for the origin of homo sapiens."

Dr. Glynn Isaac, an anthropologist from the University of California at Berkeley, and Richard Leakey led the expedition to the largely unexplored Lake Rudolf region of Kenya.

A complete skull of ancient man was pieced together from fragments found in fossil deposits dated, along with stone tools, at more than 2.5 million years. Its brain capacity was much larger than that of other early hominids and its shape "is remarkably reminiscent of modern man."

Thigh and lower leg bones, Leakey said, "are practically indistinguishable from the same bones of modern man."

It was once thought that homo erectus, an upright creature that lived about a million years ago, was the earliest evidence of man's forebears.

The elder Leakey's discovery of homo habilis and other fossils "revolutionized the study of prehistoric man," according to the National Geographic Society which sponsored his work.

'Snowdon' . . . Special Book

LONDON (UPI) — It is a long slim volume of photographs, possibly just another book for the coffee table except for one word on the cover—"Snowdon."

Lord Snowdon, that is.

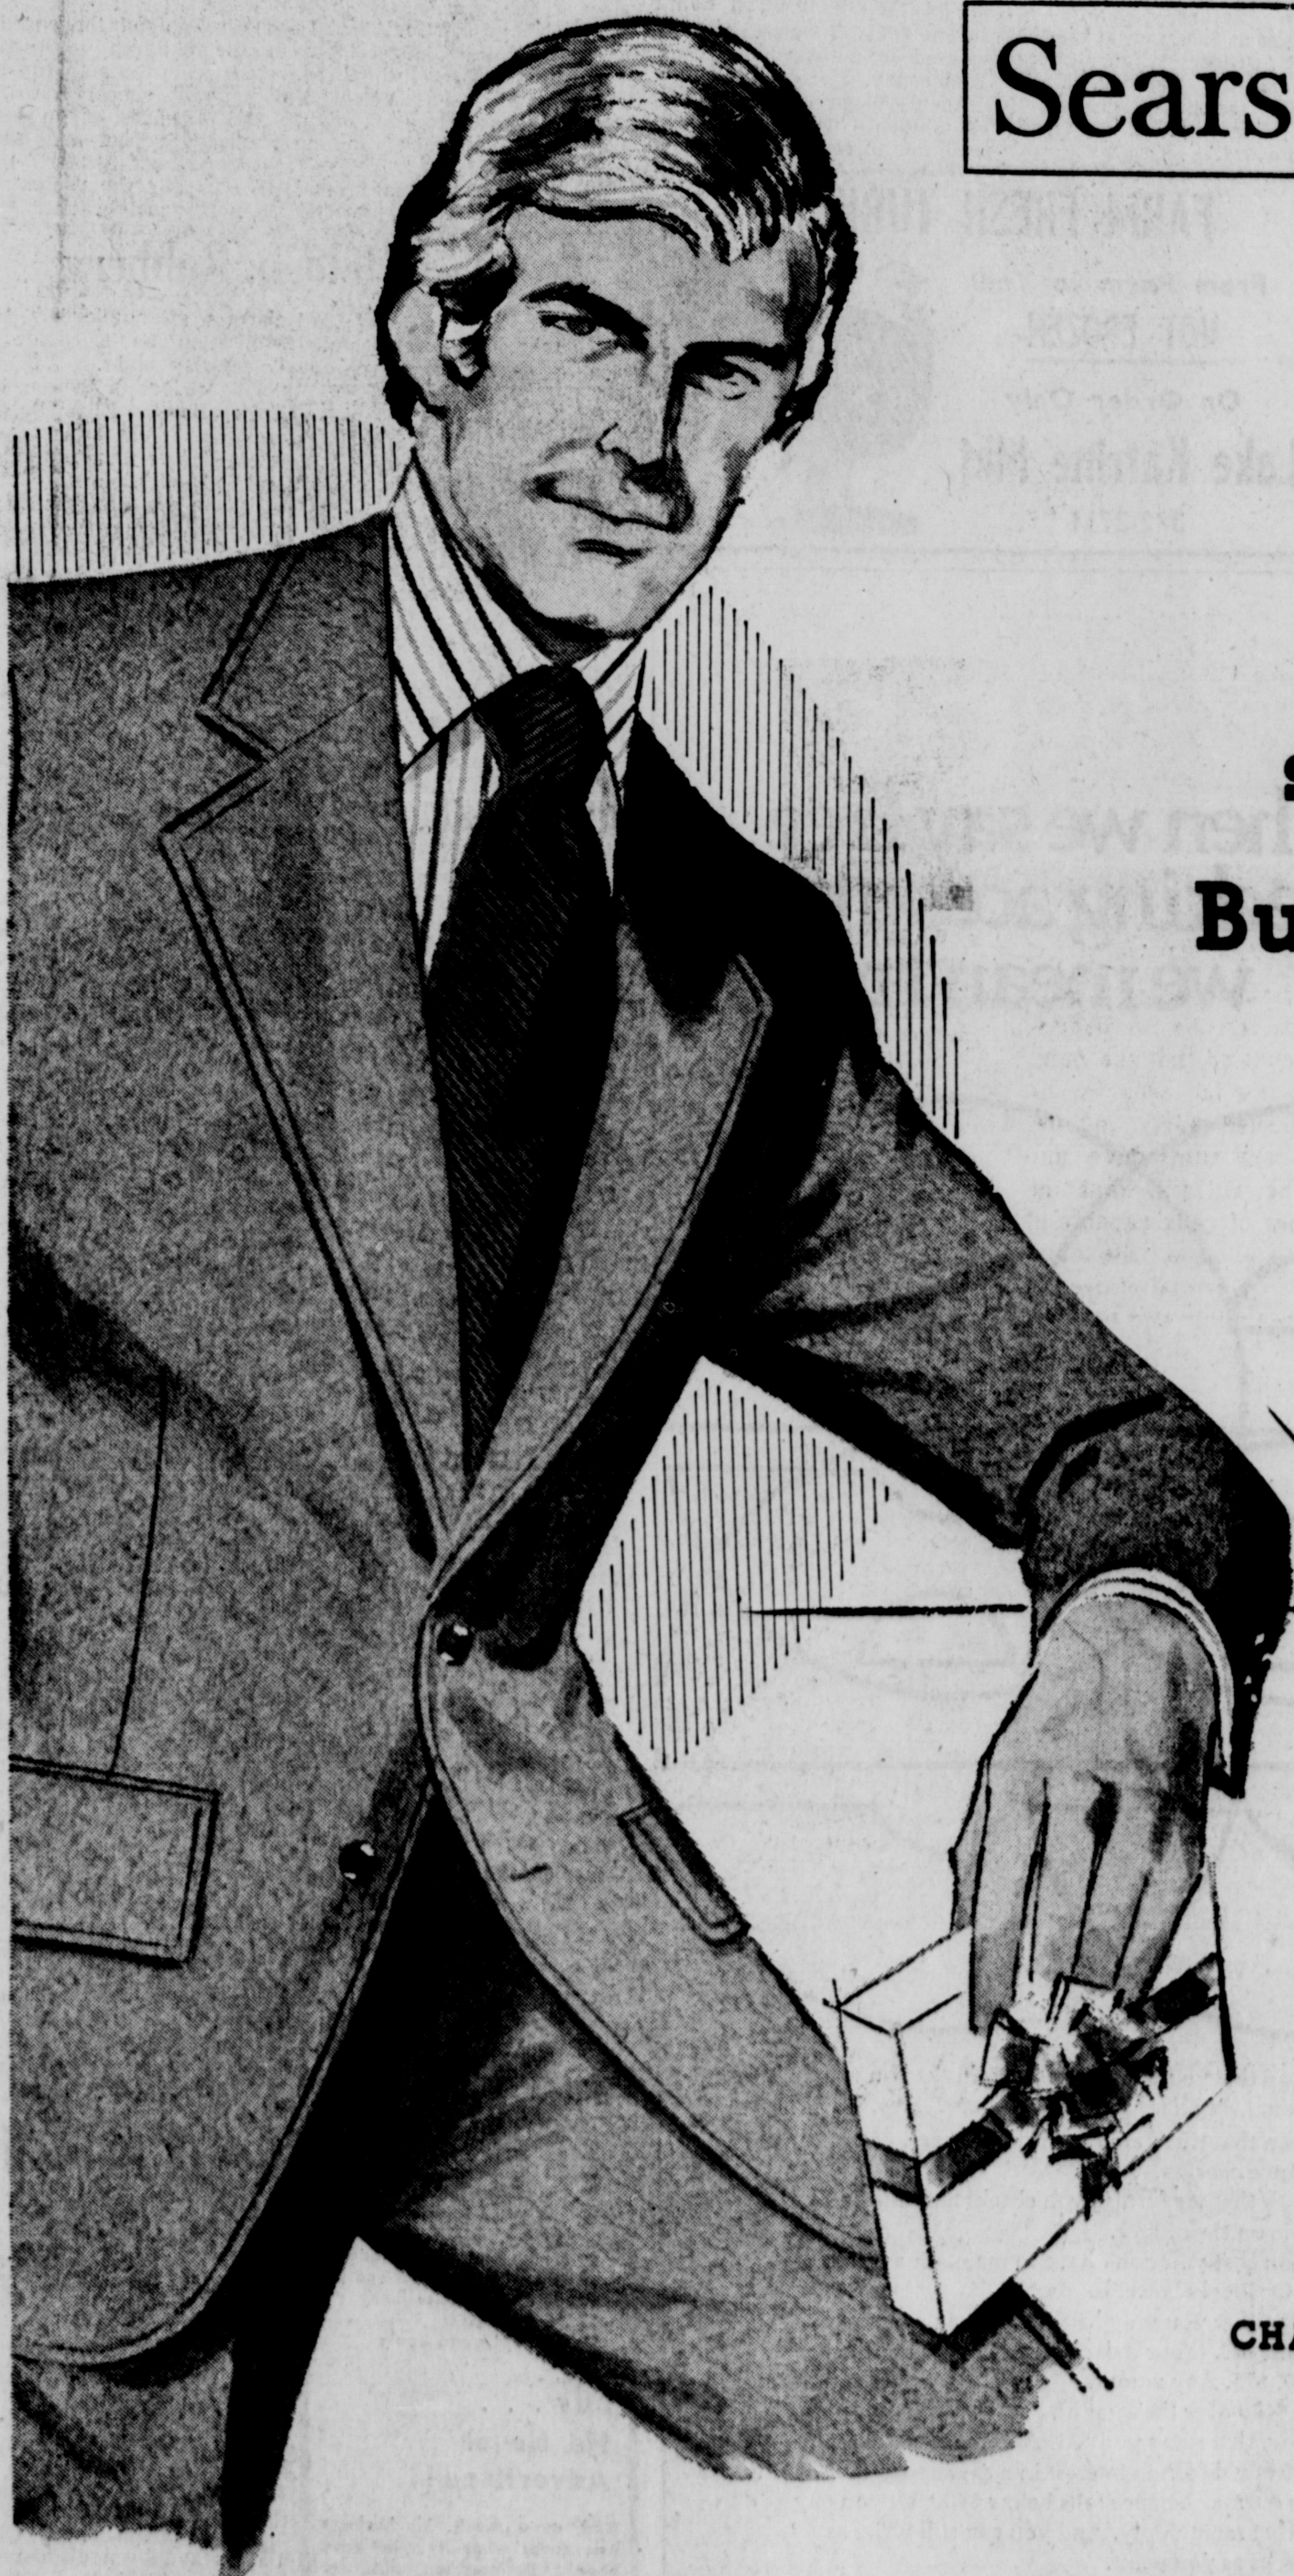

Once known as Tony Armstrong-Jones, he is better known now as Princess Margaret's husband and irreverently dubbed "the lens behind the throne."

Nor is "Assignments," his 220-page book published today, a simple collection of a photographer's favorite shots.

Artists with brush or chisel hold retrospectives to show the whole sweep of their career. Photographers publish books. "Assignments" is Lord Snowdon's retrospective.

It covers 20 years of his professional career, from brash unknown to the world's socially highest-ranked cameraman.

Somehow it avoids being a catalog of the famous, though Snowdon has photographed most of them. Charlie Chaplin, Henry Moore, Laurence Olivier, Ingrid Bergman, Dame Margot Fonteyn, Paul Scofield, Sophia Loren, T. M. Eliot, Marlene Dietrich, Somerset Maugham, Igor Stravinsky, Brendan Behan, Noel Coward, Eugene Ionesco, Elizabeth Taylor, Clement Attlee, Harold Macmillan...the list could be much longer.

New Jersey Man Arrested ...Told Troopers Tall Tale

FISHKILL, N.Y. (UPI) — A southern New Jersey man, found tied to the steering column of his car in rural Dutchess County, told state police Wednesday that he had been kidnapped, driven around by his abductors for two weeks and robbed of $2,400.

Troopers and the FBI investigated the tale, and later arrested the kidnap victim, charging him with filing a false report. Troopers said George Welcome, 27, allegedly thought up the kidnap story as an excuse to explain his two week absence to his wife.

Troopers said Welcome, who gave his address as Holgate, N.J., was found, bound hand and foot, in his car, which was parked along Route 9, just south of Interstate 89.

They said Welcome told investigators he had been seized near his home and driven around the New York-New Jersey area for two weeks while his abductors decided his fate.

But, after an investigation, police said, it was learned that Welcome actually spent the two week—and the $2,400—in Massachusetts.

In addition to the false report charge, Welcome was charged with possession of a pistol. He was being held in lieu of $500 bail in the Dutchess County jail at Poughkeepsie.

Disc Jockey Found Dead

MILWAUKIE, Ore. (UPI) — Listeners wondered why radio station KXYI had gone off the air and no one answered the telephone.

One listener then telephoned police early Wednesday. They found disc jockey Michael D. Roberts, 22, hanging dead from a water pipe with electrical wiring wrapped around his neck in the transmitter room.

A log entry written later by another station employee labeled the death a suicide.

There were no indications Roberts made any references on the air about committing suicide.

Dance Planned

The Orange County Chapter of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States will hold its annual dinner-dance Saturday, Nov. 11, starting at 6:30 p.m. at the West Point Officers Club. Captain Leonard P. Hartung, USNR, will be the guest speaker. He will present a talk on "Soviet Sea Power."

Boycott Pleas Are Ignored

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pleas by community leaders and school officials to end a school boycott in the racially troubled Canarsie section of Brooklyn were ignored by most white parents Wednesday.

About 80 per cent of the 10,000 students who normally attend the three junior high and six elementary schools in the district were absent.

Board of Education officials said it was the highest attendance at the schools since the boycott began Oct. 28. About 90 per cent of the students have been absent most of the time.

The officials said there were indications that students might start "trickling back" in the next few days.

The dispute revolves around the admission of 31 minority children to one of the Canarsie schools. White parents have staged sometimes violent demonstrations against their admission.

They contend the enrollment of the children represents a reduction in the authority of the community school board, tips racial balances at an already overcrowded school and adds to overcrowding.

Blacks say the whites' opposition is purely racist.

Two Held In Robbery

ELLENVILLE — Two men have been confined to jail on second degree robbery charges after allegedly taking $428 from an Ellenville man Wednesday night.

William Arthur Benson, of the Park Hotel, Ellenville, told police that he was walking along Center Street toward the hotel about 9 p.m. Wednesday when the two men jumped from a car. While one man allegedly held him, the other went through his pockets, allegedly taking $420 from his wallet and another $8 in change from his pocket, he said.

Benson accompanied Detective George Sheeley and Sergeant Charles Sinsky of the Ellenville Police Department in a tour of village streets. At 10:20 p.m., police arrested Andrew Gromm, 26, of Spring Glen, and Joseph Tremblay, 33, of Wynn Terrace Hill, Ellenville, on the basis of an identification by Benson of the two men as the pair who had robbed him.

Grimm and Tremblay, both reportedly employed at an Ellenville filling station, were arraigned before Village Justice Ronald Elias, who ordered them confined to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail each.

They are slated to appear before Elias again at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 14 for a preliminary hearing.

Sailors Set For Trial In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of the 25 black sailors charged in a racial brawl aboard the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk Oct. 11 will not be tried until the ship reaches the United States about Dec. 1.

Jerry W. Friedheim, a Defense Department spokesman, said Wednesday a few of the courts martial stemming from the incident while the carrier was in the Tonkin Gulf off Vietnam have begun at sea, but he said the men who want civilian lawyers will not be tried until the ship reaches port. The Kitty Hawk is on the way back to the United States.

Monday, the general counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Nathaniel Jones, charged that the Navy "seems bent on avoiding publicity" by trying the blacks at sea.

Meeks was arrested on the basis of information furnished by a 15-year-old girl who alleged that on Oct. 30 Meeks picked her up in a car shortly after Kingston High School classes had been dismissed for the day. Meeks then allegedly drove about the city with the girl for a short time, then went to Locust Street, where he parked the car, the girl said.

Meeks then allegedly threatened the girl with a club and a knife and forced her to submit sexual intercourse by holding the knife to her throat, police said.

Meeks was confined to the Ulster County Jail without bail for an appearance in City Court today.

Rate Drop In Hurley

HURLEY — The 1973 budget for the Town of Hurley, adopted Wednesday night following a public hearing, will provide a drop in the town tax rate for Hurley residents.

According to figures supplied by Town Clerk Raymond Crosswell, the town tax rate for residents of the Hurley area will be $36.28 per thousand of assessed valuation, including $4.79 for their fire district, down $3.06 from the 1972 rate of $39.34. West Hurley residents will have a 1973 town tax rate of $37.51 per thousand, paying $6.02 per thousand for their fire district. The West Hurley rate is down $2.26 from the 1972 rate of $37.77 per thousand.

The total appropriations for 1973 in the Town of Hurley will be $347,718.22, including both general and highway. With $86,337.62 listed in revenues, the amount to be raised by taxes will be $251,380.60. The 1972 amount to be raised by taxes was $258,216.32.

Residents of the Rolling Meadows lighting district will pay an additional $2.15 per thousand of assessed valuation for that service.

Three people were reported in attendance at the meeting, with no objections raised to the budget.

Crosswell said the credit for the tax decrease was due to Town Supervisor George Schroeder. According to Crosswell, Schroeder had been working on and studying the budget for two months, and the effort resulted in the tax drop. "He's done all he could for the people of Hurley," said Crosswell of Schroeder.

'Happy' Plan Is Ended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For six months the Army allowed young civilians to spend three days at Ft. Jackson, S.C., to determine if they would be happy as soldiers.

About 2,600 men took part in the experiment. The Army announced Wednesday it was ending the program but might revive it later after a review, expanding it to a large number of bases.

Spokesmen said that about 83 per cent of the men who tried out life at Ft. Jackson and passed their physical and mental exams enlisted in the Army.

Part of preparations for conversion to an all-volunteer force, the experiment was intended to allow men with doubts about military life to get a taste of it before committing themselves to an enlistment.

Ruskin, who submitted his resignation some time ago but stayed on the job at the mayor's request, will return to private law practice.

Scopetta presently is a special assistant U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York.

Rockettes Injured

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fourteen of Radio City Music Hall's Rockettes were injured Wednesday when a five-foot-high portable staircase on which they were rehearsing a dance number collapsed. Ten of the girls were treated and released at Roosevelt Hospital. The others did not require hospital attention. A spokesman for the music hall said the injured Rockettes would be replaced and the Christmas show for which they were rehearsing would go on as scheduled.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today in moderate trading as excitement over President Nixon's re-election subsided.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped fractionally and declining issues held a slight margin over advancing ones on the New York Stock Exchange.

The President's re-election sparked an initial rally Wednesday but the advance slackened as profit-taking set in and dealt blows to issues some stiff blows. Analysts said the market had already responded to expectations of a Nixon victory last week, when the Dow moved ahead nearly 38 points.

The sell-off Wednesday was mainly in issues with high price-earnings ratios, they said. Among the casualties were International Business Machines, Eastman Kodak, Xerox and Polaroid, which all closed lower.

The Dow Jones slipped 1.06 to 913.74, after spurring up more than nine points during the morning. Declining issues forged a slim lead over advancing ones in heavy trading.

Conspiracy Conviction Handed Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nicholas Rattenni, 66, a reputed underworld figure in Westchester County, was convicted of jury tampering conspiracy Wednesday night by a U.S. District Court jury.

The jury, which resumes deliberations today, must now decide on a second count in the indictment—actually making the attempt to influence the jury in a trial held in January, in which Rattenni was acquitted of bribery charges.

Both counts carry a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The trial of Rattenni, so-called "garbage king of Westchester," began Monday. Three co-defendants were indicted with Rattenni and the jury must also decide their fate.

The co-defendants are Louis Boggia of Thornwood, Michael Roman of Nyack, and Joseph Fiore of Stony Point.

Consumer Protection Conviction

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last of Consumer Affairs and the district attorney.

Wednesday, Tursi and Franzoni each were fined $250 and sentenced to 10 days in jail for performing unauthorized repairs on the car. It was the first conviction under a 1966 statute requiring a car owner's written permission for repairs.

The conviction "should be most beneficial for the consumer," said Thomas Mackell, Queens district attorney.

Requero refused to pay the towing and repair bill to Natale Tursi, 29, and Augustus Franzoni, 28. His car was impounded and sold. But he filed a complaint with the city Department

Legislature Meets Tonight

'Meals on Wheels' . . . Maybe

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Two resolutions already on file with the Ulster County Legislature calling for county financing of the "Meals on Wheels" program for senior citizens may or may not be acted upon at tonight's meeting of the County Board at 8 in the County Office Building.

County Legislator Raymond Armatr (R-City), chairman of the Program for the Aging Committee, said last week that he had been notified by state officials of Health, Education and Welfare that federal funds for the nutritional program will not be flowing into Albany and as a consequence state aid to subsidize the program in Ulster County and elsewhere will be withdrawn.

Subsequent to Armatr's announcement, Louis Grimaldi, director of Ulster County Community Action which sponsors the "Meals on Wheels Program" announced that the program would be extended to March 31 and possibly to June of 1972.

The resolutions calling for county financing are in the amount of $2,917 to fund the hot meals for the last three months of this year.

The legislature will also consider the establishment of a county environmental Management Council. As an area commission, it would be concerned with such things as recycling, studying the county with regard to available land and sewage problems, water and air pollution, solid wastes and other environmental problems.

The measure is sponsored by the Public Health Committee, Melvin Mones (R-City), chairman.

The board is also expected to set the date of Tuesday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. for a public hearing on the budget. A review of budget matters was to take place in an executive session of the Legislature at today's afternoon meeting of the board. Other resolutions to come before the board include one calling for the acceptance of a bid for the printing of the proceedings of the Ulster County Legislature for 1973. The bid is for 300 pages at $7.50 a page.

Still other resolutions call for the authorization for the distribution of mortgage tax receipts and transfers of funds within the Ulster County Chest Clinic, Temporary Manpower Council, County Treasurer and Social Services Department. There is also a request that Frank Miller, mosquito control foreman, attend a three-day conference of the Northeastern Insect Vector Control Conference at Danvers, Mass.

Agenda Is Listed by City School Board

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON Rules and regulations governing the distribution of politically oriented literature on school property will be adopted at tonight's regular session of the Board of Education of the Kingston City Schools Consolidated.

The meeting begins at 8:30 p.m. at the Hurley Elementary School.

The literature issue stems from a threatened lawsuit earlier this year by a committee of students, who charged that school officials had infringed upon their First Amendment rights by prohibiting the distribution of campaign materials at the high school during the May school board elections.

With some direction from regulations established by the State Education Department, the school board has devised a policy that will reportedly permit the distribution of certain literature in certain situations. H. Peter Hoffman, chairman of the Student Services Committee, will detail the new policy tonight. He had promised action at both the September and October meetings of the school board, but passed each time so the matter could be studied further. It has been placed on the agenda for tonight's meeting.

Also on the agenda is a resolution proposed by Mrs. Marianne Darrow, chairman of the Communications Committee, to adopt rules for the maintenance of order on school property. The new policy, under study for the past two months, has been mandated by the state.

There has been no indication, however, that the contract dispute between the school district and the Administrative and Supervisory Personnel Association (ASPA) will be resolved through the imposition of terms of a contract at tonight's meeting. Board president Harold Keator had said earlier that the school board would probably act on the matter at November's meeting.

A Legislative Hearing on the four-month dispute was held Oct. 4.

Other matters slated for tonight's meeting include a model health curriculum demonstration and the awarding of several transportation contracts.

work because of minimal brain dysfunction (MBD).

'Nader's Raider' Praises Rep. Fish

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON — One gets the impression that if Peter M. Macky, a "Nader's Raider" who compiled the Congressional profile of Hamilton Fish Jr. for the Nader Organization, lived in the new 25th District, he'd be voting for Ham Fish.

The report, part of an overall study of Congress, pictures Hamilton Fish Jr. as "a courtly, affable man, a young moderate Republican" who reflects the views of his largely rural constituency.

"Ham Fish Jr., is one man who has been able to achieve his boyhood dream, in some respects his election to Congress was inevitable," Macky wrote. "People in eastern New York have been demonstrating their affection for Fishes since 1842." The current Congressman Fish graduated from New York Law School in 1957 "and then spent the next nine years getting to know the Upstate New York region, his great-grandfather, grandfather and father had represented in Congress."

"But the road to Congress was long and costly," Macky wrote. "Fish firmly believes that his name was not enough in 1968 (when he narrowly defeated John Dyson) and cites his 1966 defeat (at the hands of the late Joseph Y. Resnick) as an example."

As a result, Fish has made it a practice while in office to spend almost every weekend and most Mondays in his district. "Ham likes to mix with people," John Barry, his congressional aide, is quoted as saying in his report. "He actually enjoys visiting firehouses, bowling alleys and shopping centers," Barry mused.

Back in Washington, Fish has taken a strong administration stand on the war in Southeast Asia. He has voted against every House effort to curtail the American presence in Southeast Asia... explaining I certainly approve of the winding down of the war by the Nixon Administration, but, I've never felt that Congress which constitutionally declares war, should usurp the role of the President in making peace. "Moderate" would appear an apt description of Fish's voting record, he holds a 59 per cent rating with Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative group, and a 43 per cent rating with Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal group. He holds an 89 per cent rating with the American Security Council, "a coalition of former military leaders, defense industry executives and concerned citizens advocating a strong defense posture in order to deter war."

Fish, in Macky's report, comes across as a gracious man, a good winner and a good loser. He makes no excuse for his defeat in 1966 against Resnick, noting that Resnick "had done the job and was highly visible. It's really difficult to knock anyone out who has tended to his knitting," Fish observed.

Dyson, by Fish's estimation spent $750,000 against him in 1968. "I'd have loved to be his campaign manager (with that kind of money to work with," Fish said.

Fish wiped out John J. Greaney in 1970 with 71 per cent of the vote but observed, "of course you have to consider that my opponent ran under tremendous handicaps, no organization or money to speak of." Fish said he spent $30,082 in that race.

The article indicates that serving in Congress has cost Fish money. According to a Fish financial report in the article, Fish owned 400 shares of IBM stock in 1968 and today owns only 35. "Hammy's poor as a churchmouse," Barry is quoted as saying, and indicates that the Fishes as a family aren't all that prosperous... "shirt sleeve to shirt sleeve for three generations," Barry says.

In conclusion, Macky writes of Ham Fish Jr., "the name, the enthusiasm for campaigning, the brand of moderate Republicanism which seems popular in the Valley, the weakness of the political position, all point to a per Fishes of New York."

KINGSTON
Shutterbugs and girlwatchers are expected by the hundreds this weekend as Caldor, Inc. launches a pre-holiday photo jamboree at its local Kingston store.

Beginning Friday at 5 p.m. and continuing until 9:30 p.m. closing time, and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday a score of major photographic manufacturers will display the latest in equipment, supplies and techniques at the chain's Kingston store located at Ulster Avenue Mall and Neighborhood Road.

In a special area adjacent to the photo department, local camera enthusiasts will be able to try out the most up-to-date cameras, meters, lenses, strobos and other accessories, and to meet with representatives of major manufacturers.

On hand to welcome visitors will be Miss New York State Miss World Contest, brown-haired beauty Michelle Franqui. Joining Miss Franqui will be a number of special Caldor models who will pose for amateur photographers. For those who prefer the other end of the lens, a Polaroid Camera Girl will take free color portrait pictures of customers.

A number of special arrangements have been made by Caldor for the event. A special hot line has been installed to major photographic concerns in New York City so a customer may obtain an "instant quote" on the trade-in value of his old equipment.

A special camera check-up service will be offered from 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday for persons wishing to have their camera "tuned up."

Miss Franqui, a resident of Brentwood, L. I., N. Y., is a sophomore at Farmingdale Uni-

Transistorized Radios... A Good Buy at Woolworth's

NEW YORK — Julie Andrews isn't the only one who's hearing "the sound of music" in the air. Today she's got plenty of company as millions are as close to ballads and hard rock — as well as the news, the weather and sports — as their vast pockets or purses.

And it's all due to today's rock-bottom prices of small transistorized portable radios, according to the F.W. Woolworth Co. While the morning commuter faced with a busload of "transistorized" high schoolers might at times wish technology hadn't advanced beyond the stage of plug-in radios, what's on the easily picked up, no matter where you are, with a less-than-four dollar purchase.

For a little more, the harassed commuter who finds blaring rock music a little hard to take at 8 o'clock in the evening. For under 15 dollars he might also purchase a portable transistor radio but the trick is, with his added expenditure, he's got one with both AM and FM bands. He could tune in to an FM classical station, wait for a commercial break on the radios around him, then majestically turn up to full blast — the finale of Tchaikovsky's 1812 overture with its booming cannons and all.

The kids might get the point and then they might not. Woolworth cautions — things could turn into a continuing daily battle between the Rolling Stones and the roaring Ride of the Valkyrie. But anyway it's worth a try. If all else fails a businessman's ride to work can still be soothing. Block out the Rock, Woolworth says, and use the earplugs that accompany your AM/FM portable and listen in relative privacy to the soothing strains of Johann Strauss.

Two Woolworth stores are located in Kingston, N.Y., one at 311 Wall Street and the other in the Ulster Shopping Plaza, Ulster Avenue Mall.

Handwriting Analyst Says

That Signature Can Give You Away

DALLAS (UPI)—To the uninitiated, a person's signature amounts to little more than a name tag, but Mrs. Barbara Halsey, a handwriting analyst, says it reveals the whole person—likes, dislikes, fears, hangups and hidden talents.

Mrs. Halsey, mother of seven children and a master certified graphoanalyst who graduated from the International Graphoanalysis Society of Chicago has been analyzing handwriting for seven years.

While she admits handwriting analysis is not a cure-all, she maintains it can be used to good advantage in areas ranging from marriage counseling to crime prevention and detection. "Some look on the profession as pseudo-science or occult science," Mrs. Halsey said in an interview. "There is a lack of understanding by the public which isn't fully acquainted with this tool."

"As more and more people and businesses become acquainted with it, it will become more and more popular."

She said as an example that graphoanalysis can be used as a counseling add for students. "It can detect such things as fear of criticism or lack of stimulation in the youngster," she said. "A preschool scribble can be analyzed to detect the qualities which the child is developing."

"It would be useful for teachers who could use it to tell which students need to be brought out, which ones really like to learn and those who are just daydreaming their time away."

Mrs. Halsey said graphoanalysis also can be useful to young couples contemplating marriage by showing if they have any real conflicting traits and prepare them for getting used to their mate's habits.

How a person writes also can reflect personal characteristics such as honesty or deceit, pride or sloth, willpower or wastefulness," she said. "It can be used in solving crimes because a person cannot disguise himself in handwriting. It would show if a person is capable of committing the crime he is suspected of."

Other uses for graphoanalysis include personnel management and finance.

"Credit managers have found it a useful tool because it reflects personal characteristics such as honesty or deceit, pride or sloth, willpower or wastefulness," she said.

Mrs. Halsey also said that disturbed persons can be helped because they can be detected through their handwriting and referred to the proper authorities.

In fact, she said, practically every human trait from jealousy and fear to confidence and enthusiasm is revealed in a person's handwriting. The giveaway is the way individual handwriting strokes are made, the spacing of letters and words and the slant of the script.

Mrs. Halsey said graphoanalysts recognize the responsibility they carry when assessing a person's character.

"When I realize how deep into the psyche we can get, it's frightening," she said. "It's a sacred trust."

Dr. Shea Tribute
By TB-RD Group

KINGSTON—Tribute was paid to the late Dr. Edward F. Shea by the Catskill Region TB and RD Association for his long years of service and personal commitment to the agency, its services and program.

At the November meeting of the officers and board of directors of the association, a special resolution was prepared and made by Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., president emeritus of the association, who also, with Mrs. Holcomb and family, have been close personal friends of Dr. Shea's for many years.

The resolution was unanimously established by the directors under the leadership of association president, John M. Robbins, and said: "Dr. Shea was vice president of the Association many years and contributed in a great measure to Association program in the control and treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis and the other Respiratory Diseases. "Dr. Shea was a regular attendant at our meetings and in spite of a very extensive medical practice, always found time to assist in guiding and developing our programs in public health work."

"We extend our deep sympathy to his family and his many friends and patients who benefited for so many years from his devoted services."

The prior Ulster County TB and Health Association recognized Dr. Shea as a "prima mover" in many advances in TB and health work. He served on its board of directors, and, from 1946, was one of the key members of its Mental Hygiene Committee, serving as its Chairman.

It was under his leadership that the Association's Mental Health Committee developed farther, and later became the independent Ulster County Mental Health Association. Dr. Shea served as TB and Health Association's first vice president 1954 to 1965; as a director, varying terms since 1946; an official member of the Executive Committee 1954-1965; Member-at-Large of the Executive Committee 1965-1969. Dr. Shea became also a member-at-large of the Executive Committee of the new reorganized Catskill Region TB and RD Association in 1969 when the former Ulster County TB groups. He served in that position up to the time of his death.

Library Officers Tabbed

WOODSTOCK

Several appointments of officers and committee chairmen were made at a recent meeting of the trustees of the Woodstock Library.

Alvin Moscovitz was appointed as legal counsel for the library. Mrs. Elvin (Judy) McDonald was appointed as a new trustee. Committee appointments were Mrs. McDonald, membership chairman; William West, Jr., finance chairman; and Vivian Moscovitz, nominating committee chairman.

It was noted at the meeting that library membership will now run from January to January instead of May to May as in the past.

A 24 per cent increase in circulation of the library's books in the last two years was reported at the meeting. Librarians have noted that the emphasis is no longer on reading for entertainment, but on study and research.

Complete Drug Study

WOODSTOCK

Under the auspices of the Woodstock Narcotic Guidance Council, a team of six Woodstock residents recently completed internships at the Drug Dependence Institute at Yale University.

Members of the team included: Peter Berge, a peer group counselor and member of the junior class at Onteora High School; Charles Britting, junior high school guidance counselor at Onteora; Neuma Crandall, a peer group counselor and also a junior at Onteora; Maureen Flammer, Coordinator of "Family," Crisis Information and Referral Switchboard; Kristine Kellerhouse, Director of "Free," Crisis and Referral Switchboard, Saugerties, and active member of "Family;" and the Rev. Douglas Osgood, pastor, Overlook United Methodist Church.

During their two weeks at Yale, the team was engaged in an intensive study of the drug problem, which included lectures, demonstrations, and exercises designed to illustrate technical points and to provide opportunities to put them into practice.

A brief Parent-Teacher meeting was held during which Mrs. Judy Chase, President, presided. A special report of anticipated fund-raising activities was outlined by Ward Schelling, Chairman. The next event will be an International Pot Luck Dinner on Nov. 15.

Nominations Now in Order

Listen Veteran

KINGSTON

HOSPITALIZATION is one of the principal benefits for veterans under the GI Bill. Understandably, admission of veterans to a VA hospital is on a priority basis, with top priority going to those with service-connected injuries or diseases. Next to priority are veterans with service-connected disabilities seeking admission for treatment of non-service-connected ailments. And, finally, veterans having no service-connected disabilities. Veterans in this last category may be admitted for treatment of non-service-connected injuries or diseases if the following conditions are met: (1) hospitalization is necessary; (2) they sign under oath they are financially unable to cover the cost of necessary hospitalization elsewhere, and (3) beds are available. Veterans who are 65 years of age or older are not required to satisfy the second requirement, that of stating inability to afford hospitalization elsewhere. Veterans wanting counseling on obtaining admission to a VA hospital for treatment should contact the veteran counseling center of the New York State Division of Veterans' Affairs in this area. It's located at County Office Building, Kingston. Office Hours: Monday through Friday — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tel. 331-9300 Ext. 287.

DID YOU KNOW the key to all veterans benefits is a discharge under other than dishonorable conditions? The benefits are a small token of appreciation to veterans of the Armed Forces for faithful service to their country. They have been rightfully earned. If you haven't already done so, contact your local veterans counseling center for facts on benefits awaiting you.

Lake Katrine Cub Pack 10 . . . Commemorate Columbus

LAKE KATRINE
The Cubs of Pack 10 commemorated Columbus' discovery of America at their monthly meeting at the Lake Katrine Elementary School Oct. 30. The Cubs of Den 6, under the direction of Betty Colburn, opened the meeting by singing original lyrics to the tune of "This Old Man. This was followed by a puppet show, which was staged by the Cubs of Den 3 under the leadership of Gail Levy. The show related the story of Columbus obtaining financing from the Spanish throne, and then described his historic voyage and discovery. In keeping with the monthly theme, the Cubs participated in a contest created by Committee Chairman Paul Colburn and Pack Treasurer Alan Levy. Pack 5 was the winner of the game, which attempted to recreate Columbus' arduous journey across the Atlantic. Following the contest, the Webelos of Den 1 closed the meeting under the direction of Bob Clarke, after which refreshments were served to the Cubs and their guests. Between the puppet show and the contest, Pack Advancement Chairman G. Ernest Smith presented a number of Cubs with the awards they had earned during the month. The Arrow of Light, Cubbing's highest award, and a certificate of graduation from Pack 10 were presented to Jerry Alberstadt, who was then welcomed into the Boy Scouts by Neighborhood Commissioner Tom Casey and Troop 8 Scoutmaster Raymond Simohetti. Twenty one new Cubs — Edward Arace, Michael Blass, William Browne, James Cosgrove, Herbert Dixon, Andrew Fairchok, Robert Hung, Thomas Kearney, Jimmy Kilfoyle, Thomas Langano, Thomas Malone, Pat Mc-Cullough, Sean Montague, Ernst Mossi, Steven Murphy, Chris Peterson, Thomas Reilly, John Scheffel, Brian Steeves, Steve Werber, and Richard Wood — were inducted into Pack 10 with a Bobcat branding ceremony. Two Cubs, Larry Cosenza and William Whalen, earned their Wolf badges, and Cosenza, Jerry Hladik, Pat McCooey, and Larry Schreiber were awarded Gold arrows. Cosenza also received three Silver arrows, while McCooey and Jeff Tanka each earned two, and Schreiber and Jerry Hardman each received one. Among the Webelos, Jerry Alberstadt earned his geologist and athletic activity badges, and Pat Beyea, William Crispell, Ray Faulkner, Donald Kupka, Gary McClurg, John McColgan, Ken Stewart, Ron Thomas, and Michael Yerry received their athletic badges. Three Cubs — Ray Faulkner, John McColgan, and Ron Thomas — were graduated to Webelos dens. Two-year pins were awarded to Jerry Hladik, John McColgan, Gary McClurg, and Ron Thomas. One-year pins were presented to Jerry Alberstadt, William Whalen, and Michael Yerry. Pack 10 will hold its next regular meeting at the Lake Katrine Elementary School Nov. 27 at 7 p.m. The monthly theme will be Things That Go.

'73 Jamboree . . . At Two Sites

KINGSTON
At least 12 Scout Troops of Ulster and Greene County area are expected to be at the National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America next August. For the first time in the history of the National Youth organization, the Jamboree will be held at two sites. Troop 42, Greenville, is planning to attend Jamboree West, Paltz; Troop 8, Sawkill; Troop 11, Kingston. The Jamboree East contingent will be under the direction of Scoutmaster Robert Perry of New Paltz. Jamboree will be directed by David Battini of Troop 16, Stone Ridge; Troop 17, Greenville. In addition, another 40 Scouts will be members of a provisional troop according to Martin Kennedy, Jamboree Chairman chief of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America. Martin Kennedy named Erwin Tate of Saugerties, as Provisional Troop Leader. "A National Jamboree gives Scouts a program of Skills, Sports and other activities at their best," Kennedy said. "One of the great values of a Jamboree is to give Scouts the opportunity through living together to understand the dignity of the individual and the strength to be found in the respect of each Scout for his brother." Kennedy said that all troops from this area going to the Jamboree will be preparing in advance for the personal and team competition and will be strengthening the operation of the troop and patrol method.

At Dallas Meeting

Area Girl Scouts Represented

KINGSTON
The National Council meeting of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. was in session Oct. 22 to 25 in Dallas, Texas. Mrs. Hubert Richter, president, Kingston; Mrs. Harry Cornwell, board member; and Miss Cindy Holliday, Senior Girl Scout, of New Paltz; Mrs. Norman Lovitch, field advisor, Clintondale; and Miss Maryella Moorhead, executive director, Kingston, represented the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts. Delegates voted on adoption of a proposed new wording of the Girl Scout Promise and Laws, which has been discussed and developed by Girl Scouts of all ages throughout the United States, to make the code of ethics more meaningful to girls today. Other proposals considered were: Further limit the size of the National Council; to lower the age limit of National Council members to include girls 14 years and older as voting delegates; and to add an associate membership for girls who wish to remain active but for any reason cannot be active members of a troop. Mrs. Douglas H. MacNeil, president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. and Mrs. Edward H. Tenison Jr., chairman of Region V, were hostesses for a meeting to open the convention Sunday night. Monday's program centered on "Evolving and Initiating to Meet the Needs of Today's Girls" and "Moving in New Directions." The session included reports on Inter Action Pilot Projects in six councils throughout the U.S. "Girl Scouting as a Voluntary Movement" was the top Tuesday. Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts is a member agency of the United Way of Ulster County.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin. Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain? You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet. Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset. When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin.

Kingston Navy Recruiter . . .

By CARL GRAHAM

KINGSTON
"Recruiting is a challenge. It's one of the most rewarding parts of my career."

The speaker, Equipment Operator First Class Larry J. Smalt, smiled and leaned back in his chair at the U.S. Navy Recruiting Office at the corner of Broadway and Maiden Lane. Larry looks like someone who has spent the past nine years being groomed for recruiting duty although, as his rank indicates, his principal duty since joining the Navy in 1963 has been with Seabee heavy construction units.

Born in Rochester, Larry was brought up in the Steuben County village of Dansville and graduated from high school there. His service career began not in the Navy but in the Army. Enlisting shortly after graduation from high school, Larry served a total of four years, including 21 months of postwar occupation duty in Korea with the 98th Combat Infantry Regiment, the 24th Division and the 1st Cavalry Division.

Four months of civilian life was enough to convince him that his future lay in the service. He enlisted in the Navy and after completing boot training was assigned to Class Equipment Operator School, where he learned the basics of heavy equipment operation for service with Seabee construction units.

Larry found that his previous service wasn't entirely discounted by the Navy, which advanced him two pay grades as a result of his Army service. After completing the Class A Equipment Operator Course, he was assigned to Port Hueneme, California, where he completed a one-year course of specialized training in operation and maintenance of heavy equipment.

Upon graduation he was sent to Davisville, R.I., for duty with the 21st Naval Construction Regiment and began a series of moves that saw him pull three tours of duty in Vietnam, interspersed with stateside duty at Davisville.

The 21st NCR was sent to Camp Shields at Chu Lai, Vietnam, where it spent seven months on new construction projects, highway building, and repair operations. Larry remembers especially the problems road builders faced with North Vietnamese mines, which were profuse, potent and wired to blow up the unwary or the careless. Bulldozers and other heavy equipment were fitted with special sandbagged drivers' compartments to protect the operator whenever a mine was detonated.

The 21st NCR was ordered back to Davisville for a short session of retraining and refitting and then sent back to Chu Lai, this time at Camp Anderson, for another stretch of duty. After nine months of highway construction Larry and his mates were reassigned to Davisville again. He was transferred to the 30th NCR which returned to Vietnam for a year of duty at Red Beach, Da Nang.

During these years the Navy wasn't exactly ignoring the services of its potential recruiter. He was promoted to Equipment Operator Third Class in November, 1963, to Equipment Operator Second Class in April, 1965, and to Equipment Operator First Class, his present rank, in May, 1969.

Larry has been in the Kingston recruiting office since June. He will be stationed here for at least another three years, possibly four.

He lives with his wife, the former Joyce Johnston of Dansville, and their three children in Port Ewen. Rod, 13, and Guy, 12, are pupils at Myron J. Michael Junior High School. Bonnie, 8, attends Port Ewen Elementary School.

Cooperative Efforts Underway, UCCC Early Admission Program

STONE RIDGE those students who might profit from such an experience. November with area school principals and guidance counselors to work out details that will guarantee successful operation of the Early Admissions Program," he said. According to the guidelines, high school students who have successfully completed their junior year may elect to take courses at the college level as part of or in lieu of their senior year. Those in attendance at the meeting were concerned with the implementation of the program through the careful guidance of students. "The revised guidelines extend the Early Admissions Program to include not only the very able student but all those who might profit from the alternatives," Dr. Erbstein said. "Now that we have the ideas and support of area school superintendents additional meetings are planned for mid-continuing education.

Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of Ulster County Community College, has announced the results of the first in a series of meetings to formulate and plan an Early Admissions Program to provide increased educational opportunities for the students of Ulster County. At a meeting recently held at the UCCC campus, area school superintendents and college administrators reviewed the revised guidelines of the State Education Department relating to the Early Admissions Programs. The college's concern was to avoid duplication of existing course structures while offering new options at the college level for

The American Candidate for style leadership: Pure Wool Heritage Worsted Suits by Hart Schaffner & Marx

Heritage Worsted suits the man who's a natural leader. It's a "Double Comfort" fabric of pure wool that actually stretches. Gives and takes to keep you comfortable, keeps its own good looks through the most hectic schedule. Shown here in a classic stripe and also offered in other fall-favored patterns. Hart Schaffner & Marx Astra/73 styling strikes a compromise between conservative and far-out. Lapels are wide, the waist slimly shaped, the center vent deep. ## But Also Its Master in Sweeping Win Nixon Now Independent of the GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's enormous victory Tuesday was so singularly personal that in the long run it may create serious problems for his party and ignite smoldering bitterness among Republicans.

Nixon planned his victory that way. Deliberately, he sat on his coattails.

Given the option between endangering the size of his landslide or spending some of his political effort to elect Republicans to Congress, Nixon chose a go-it-alone, close-to-the-vest strategy.

So sweeping was his victory, so far ahead of his party did he run, that, he is now both independent of the GOP and master of it.

He is now constitutionally a lame-duck president, barred from seeking re-election. His goal now is history, not partisan victory. His interests will not always coincide with those of his party.

When Lyndon B. Johnson overwhelmed Barry M. Goldwater in 1964, some proclaimed the death of the Republican party.

But the enormity of their loss forced the Republicans to swing to a centrist position while the Democrats, in their abundance of numbers, splintered into warring factions.

Now the Democrats may move toward the center—away from the prairie idealism of George S. McGovern—while Republican liberals and conservatives compete for the mantle Nixon must abandon in 1976.

Johnson, in 1964, sensing a victory, campaigned for and won a Democratic Congress. Nixon, in 1972, sensing a victory, all but avoided tying himself to his party's banner. Republicans may resent his abandonment of party in pursuit of a mandate.

Nowhere was Nixon's strategy more obvious than in the South.

In Alabama, the President was winning three votes out of four while his party's candidate for the Senate, former Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, trailed with little more than one vote out of three.

In Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nixon's coattails, hardly offered, carried him to pull.

In Mississippi, the White House tacitly endorsed the Democratic candidate, Sen. James O. Eastland. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew pointedly refused to appear beside Eastland's Republican opponent, Gil Carmichael, in a visit to Mississippi.

Nixon, in his first four years, won most of his battles with the Congress. The House usually gave him his way, especially on Vietnam, and countered the more liberal swing of the Senate.

But in his second term, Nixon may have occasional second thoughts about the wisdom of his course.

A Republican Senate would have given him George D. Aiken of Vermont as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in place of J. William Fulbright, the acidic Arkansas. McGovern still will be chairman of the Senate Hunger Committee. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., still will be pushing fat, politically appealing education appropriations at Nixon to veto.

And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in a Democratic-controlled Congress, will retain his Judiciary subcommittee chairmanship from which he intends to launch a thorough investigation of the Watergate bugging affair—starting in January.

MRS. STEPHEN HOHENSTEIN
(Mona F. Schnur)

Mona F. Schnur, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Schnur of 6 Stony Run, Kingston, became the bride of Stephen Hohenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hohenstein of 58 Finger Street, Saugerties, on Sunday, Oct. 22.

The Rev. Daniel McGrath of Mt. St. Alphonsus in Esopus officiated at the double ring ceremony at Walnut Grove, Kingston. Traditional wedding selections were provided.

Given in marriage by her brother, Stuart Schnur, the bride chose a gown of imported satin-faced organza styled with a shaped empire bodice featuring a high neckline and long Cavalier sleeves. Scalloped Venice lace braid accented the neckline, edged the cuffs and created a scooped neckline effect on the bodice. Matching lace encircled the waistline and trimmed the full, floor length skirt. Delicate borders of crystal pleated organza accented the high, stand-up collar and created a border on the hemline. She wore a Juliette styled headpiece of heirloom Venice lace accented with seed pearls to which was shirred her triple tiered chapel length silk illusion veil. She carried a Bible covered with white orchids and carnations.

MRS. MICHAEL NUELMAN
(Lois Wissok)

was honor attendant. Other attendants were Brenda Kiefer, Westwood, N.J.; Susan Schnur, North Plainfield, N. J.; Nancy Hohenstein, Saugerties. For her bridal party, the bride chose a color scheme of royal blue, deep purple, ruby and autumn gold.

The gowns of silk taffeta were fashioned with fitted bodices in the princess styling posed over demi-bell skirts in baby checked taffeta. They wore bow details in their hair and carried bouquets of autumn colored chrysanthemums.

Peter Barber of Saugerties was best man for his cousin. Ushers were Charles Daly of Saugerties; Fred Bender of Long Island; Joseph McCutcheon of Saugerties.

A reception was given at Walnut Grove in Kingston. The bride, a graduate of Westwood High School, Westwood, N.J., and Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services, is a licensed practical nurse.

Her husband, an alumnus of Saugerties High School, earned his BS degree in Education at State University College at New Paltz.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside at Catskill.

Lois Wissok daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Wissok of 160 Hurley Avenue, Kingston became the bride of Michael Nuelman son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Nuelman of 10 Salem Road Rockville Centre Saturday, Oct. 21 at Singer's Hotel, Spring Valley.

Rabbi Harry Schechtman of Ahavath Israel in Kingston officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of an original design in ivory dutchess satin fashioned with high, stand-up collar. Hand-embroidered beaded braid trimmed the collar and cuffs and created a bib effect on the front bodice. The gown featured a cathedral length detachable train. She wore a custom designed Camelot headpiece of matching satin, trimmed with beading, to which her triple tiered silk illusion veil was shirred. She carried a colonial bouquet of baby roses, white orchids and stephanotis.

Carol Nuelman, sister of the bridegroom, Rockville Center, was honor attendant in a light blue polyester satin gown. She carried a crescent bouquet of blue pompons and white roses.

Billy Eldier of Rockville Center was best man. Ushers were Douglas Boettner, Schenectady; Wayne Lamson, Massachusetts; Randy Vilord, Suffern; and Michael White, Florida.

A reception was given at Singer's Hotel in Spring Valley.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, was graduated from Mt. Ida College, Newton, Mass. with an Associate of Science degree in Retailing.

Her husband, an alumnus of South Side High School, Rockville Centre, was awarded his Bachelor of Science degree from Bentley College, Waltham, Mass., where he was chaplain of the fraternity. He is now employed for the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell, White Plains office.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, they will reside at First Street, Nanuet.

Hostess Dress

Vassarette's in with a fanciful flowers hostess dress that's good for holiday parties. The polyester knit dress boasts a colorful splash of flowers on a long shirred skirt. Feminine ruffles frame a low scoop neck and lifted waistline. It's a lounge dress but it can stay at home or go out. At the price — around $30 — who's to argue?

WHITTEMORE AND LOWE

Piano Team Coming

Whittemore and Lowe the famed duo-piano team will appear here on Monday evening November 27 at the Community Theater. The program marks the opening of the 1972-73 series of the Association.

Presently at the pinnacle of their career they are universally acknowledged as music's foremost two-piano team. They have run up a record of achievement that may never be paralleled in the field of music.

Whittemore and Lowe were the first duo pianists to appear at the White House to introduce popular music on the concert stage and to have averaged over 70 concerts a year. At their performances standing ovations are the rule rather than the exception.

As recitalists they are uniquely successful. Their hallmarks are the creative care with which they build their programs and the striking empathy which they feel for audiences.

They have appeared with such renowned orchestras as the New York Philharmonic the Boston Symphony and the St. Louis Symphony.

Norman Nadel critic for the New York World-Telegram, has said, "In twenty years as a music critic I have listened to Whittemore and Lowe often and always with the renewed conviction that there is not another two-piano team playing recitals and concerts today who can touch them."

Members of the association are reminded of the change in time, for this year all concerts will begin at 8 p.m.

Featured as Soloist

John McCullough, well known tenor soloist in the Ulster County area, will be one of the featured soloists next Sunday evening in Frederick Handel's oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus," presented at the Poughkeepsie Reformed Church, Hooker Avenue. The Chorus, made up of the Youth and Senior Choir of the Poughkeepsie and New Hackensack Reformed Churches, will be under the Springstead. Mrs. George Cann, organist of the Poughkeepsie Church, will provide the organ accompaniment.

Mr. McCullough has been often heard in solo presentations in the Hudson Valley area, as well as throughout western New England. He is a past-president of the Mendelssohn Club of Kingston and of the Catskill Glee Club. For many years he directed and sang with the quartet at the Rondout Presbyterian Church in Kingston and is now soloist at St. James' Methodist Church choir in Kingston. He was featured tenor soloist last spring in the Kingston performance of Mozart's "Requiem."

A native Kingstonian, Mr. McCullough studied music and voice with Leonard Stine. He is a graduate of R.P.I. and owns the architectural firm of Halverson-McCullough Associates in Kingston. For many years he has been president of the very active and successful Community-Concert Association in Kingston. He is married and lives in Kingston with his wife Grace, and five children.

Mr. McCullough will sing the role of "Judas" in the November 12th presentation. The role of Simon, the High Priest, will be sung by Nelson G. Burhans, well known area baritone.

The Choirs of the two participating Reformed Churches have extended a cordial invitation to the people of the Kingston area to come to Poughkeepsie next Sunday evening to hear this performance of one of Handel's most masterful works. The program will begin at 8 p.m. and there will be no admission charge.

CAST OF "NIGHT"

PAW Wins Festival For Third Year

At the Fourth Annual Regional Theatre Festival, sponsored by the New York State Theatre Festival Assoc., held at Marist College on Sunday, Nov. 5, Performing Arts of Woodstock, for the third consecutive year played its way into the winners' circle. PAW's entry was Leonard Melfi's one act play, NIGHT, which Holly Beve described in her review in the Woodstock Times, Nov. 2, as "an exquisite, madly hilarious, lyrical statement about 20th Century North Americans' attitudes toward death — and, conversely, of course, life."

NIGHT, directed by Robert

Burgos, was performed by Kathy Chalfant, Wende Sherman, Frank Alexander, George Kiernan, and David Boyle. Lighting by Tom Goldstone and Neil Palent. The set was designed by Al Lind and David Boyle.

In addition to being awarded best short play of the Festival, individual citations for excellence in acting were presented to each member of the cast.

An award for best director was given to Robert Burgos.

In 1970 PAW's production of BRECHT ON BRECHT won at the Regional Theatre Festival, at Marist College, and in 1971

PAW was again a winner with Ron Radice's original one-act play, PICKPOCKET.

Professor Mort Clark, of Westchester Community College, was the Festival Adjudicator.

Leonard Melfi's NIGHT will now enter state-wide competition at the N.Y. State College, Cortland, N.Y., Nov. 17, 18, 19. The winners at Cortland will compete in the Eastern Seaboard division on April 7, at York, Penna. Those finalists will compete in June. At the end of August the national winners will be flown to Monaco to enter an International Festival.

League Is Conducting Training Course Here

Each year part of the Junior League training course for its new members involves an orientation to the many aspects of community life. Because the organization emphasizes volunteer work, this introduction helps each member to decide the area of volunteer service with which she will be involved.

Some of this program includes such topics as city-county government structure, medical facilities, public education, historic preservation, drug abuse, urban renewal, welfare problems, the mentally and physically handicapped and consumer research.

In past years the Kingston Junior League has been responsible for a variety of contributions such as the Kingston Loan Closet, the Children's Room at the Kingston Library, The Survey of Historic Buildings in Ulster County and The Homemaker's Service.

Under the training of Mrs. James R. Myers, provisional chairman, this year's group of new members includes Miss Barbara Brinnier, Mrs. Michael Bruhn, Miss Mary Stephanie Corsones, Mrs. Richard Craig, Mrs. Fritz Fiedler, Miss Karlyn Elizabeth Knaust, Miss Ellen Kwasnowski, Mrs. Abel Garrigan, Miss Elizabeth Mauer, Miss Claiborne May, Miss Jennifer Murray, Miss Lydia Newcombe, Mrs. David Silver, Mrs. Richard Tunstall, Mrs. Joseph White.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE
DON'T SLAM IT—CLEAN IT
Dear Heloise:

Never wipe finger marks off your doors or doorway jams only in the areas where the marks are found.

You will just be fast deteriorating your paint job. Instead . . . use lukewarm water without any kind of soap not even the mildest. Wipe at the marks, they come right off . . .

Then also do the rest of the doorways upper frame as well as other side frame where no marks are. This only takes a matter of minutes but what it does is keep your paint job ever new looking, thus, saving you time and money.

When you only wash off the fingerprints, you are leaving unseen build-up on all the rest of the woodwork, which will show up glaringly in a few months. Also by only washing the area where the finger marks are forever being washed off, the paint is a different shade from the rest of the woodwork or is completely washed away.

This leaves a splotchy finish of paint which screams for a whole new paint job yet which could have been avoided for a few more years if cared for properly.

Try my method — it's a paint and time saver. I think you will be amazed to find how much pale yellow gunk will come off with just a quick swipe with a snowy white cloth (rinsed in plain water). Try it with only a week's build-up. You won't believe your eyes.

So imagine if that much accumulates in a week, if we wipe at only finger-marked areas, how much of that stuff is allowed to accumulate on the rest of the woodwork, week after week.

Mrs. A. J. Blanch

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

Waste, in all its forms is a destructive, thoughtless and careless habit, whether at home or in business.

Around our home it is, and has always been, a no-no.

The sooner the "throw-away" generation learns to control themselves voluntarily, the better the chances are for our children to have some hope for their future families.

Mrs. Astrid A. Sandvik

Dear Heloise:

We love cabbage and cauliflower in our family but can't stand the unpleasant odor that lingers for hours both during and after cooking. My grandmother suggested that we cook it with a stalk of celery.

It worked! It didn't affect the taste at all, but really does away with the odor.

Granddaughter

Dear Heloise:

I want to join the crowd and submit my hint for the use of — nylon net, what else? When I make pie crust or noodles, etc., I seem to always manage to get a bit of flour and crumbs on the floor regardless of how careful I am.

The other day I'd just cleaned my kitchen carpet and sure enough I dribbled some flour on the floor, so I just dampened a piece of nylon net and patted the flour and crumbs. Heloise, that precious nylon net cleaned it up like a magnet!

Mrs. Ralph Lare

This column is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of The Daily Freeman.

Computer Date Firm Dupes Lonely Widow

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Forgive me if I make many mistakes, but I was not brought up in English. I am a widow, 45 years old, and lonely for male companionship, as are many others. I read an advertisement promising dating by computers. I foolishly answered this ad which supposedly had offices in West Hartford, Conn.; Manchester, N.H.; Boston, Mass.; Portland Me.; and Providence, R.I. I paid $295 and was promised two "computer matched" dates per month for over a period of 36 months. The contract was full of phrases like "if possible" and "if necessary" and "do not guarantee." But is there no recourse against these people who disappeared in thin air? I should have been smart enough to see this trap, but they talk so fast while they are with you, that like an idiot you sign the contract without realizing that you are being taken.

Anyway, after I paid my money and no dates were arranged, I went to the police with my contract and all the correspondence. They looked it over and said that it had been so cleverly worded, I was hooked. But they told me to write to the Department of Consumer Protection and to the Better Business Bureau, and if I (and others who have been taken in as I was) would do the same, these people would be in hot water one way or the other. I hope you will print this, Abby, so others who have been robbed as I was will write to the above mentioned places and complain.

ROBBED AND ANGRY

DEAR ROBBED: Another suggestion; never sign any kind of contract or agreement without having a lawyer look at it first.

DEAR ABBY: Do you see anything wrong with smiling and waving at truck drivers?

I have always enjoyed it, but my sister says I should cut it out because the neighbors might get the wrong idea. My brother and brother in law also say it's wrong for me to smile and wave at these truck drivers. They think I should act my age (which is 20) and be a lady, and ladies do not wave at truck drivers.

Abby, it makes me feel so good when I bring a smile to a stranger. I often say "Good day" to old people when I see them on the street. They seem to be cheered by it. Is this also not ladylike?

I'll take your advice, and I hope you say it's okay.

LIKES PEOPLE

DEAR LIKES: Smiling and waving at truck drivers is okay. Also a cheery greeting to oldsters you pass on the street. But don't go overboard. Some strangers might mistake your friendliness for an invitation to something more. In other words, if you don't want a stray dog in your lap, don't pat him on the head.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and my brother are on the outs. It's been going on for a long time in a rather silent way, but my family is aware of it.

My brother's daughter is being married soon and we are invited to the wedding. My husband flatly refuses to attend even tho I have tried to get him to go just for my sake. My parents are elderly and ailing and they would take it very hard if my husband didn't accompany me.

I am a nervous wreck thinking about going to this wedding without my husband and wondering how to explain his absence to my relatives.

I will go alone if I have to, but I wish there were some way I could get my husband to go with me.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR WRECK: A family wedding is one occasion where all "grudges" should be put aside, and anyone who isn't willing to do it is childish and stubborn. If your husband refuses to accompany you, tell your parents why, but you aren't obligated to explain it to the rest of the family.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L.A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Frye Weaving Collection For Upcoming Meeting

WOMAN'S CLUB OF SAUGERTIES will have the treat of viewing and hearing an explanation of some of the weaving collection of Berta Frye when the club meets on Thursday, Nov. 16. Admiring one of the last major pieces done by weaver Berta Frye are Mrs. J. Terry Carlisle, (right) who will explain the collection and Mrs. Ronald LeBlanc (left), Art Department chairman, who is in charge of arrangements for the evening meeting. The wool coating material they are holding is done in several shades of red, giving a dyed effect to the cloth. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Featured speaker for the November 16th meeting of the Woman's Club of Saugerties will be Mrs. J. Terry Carlisle. Mrs. Carlisle will be showing selected pieces of the weaving collection of the late Berta Frye, noted Woodstock weaver, author, and lecturer.

The Woman's Club will meet at the Trinity Episcopal Church Parish Hall, Barclay Heights, at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 16.

The late Berta Frye was a native of Woodstock and a personal friend of Mrs. Carlisle. The Carlisle family was entrusted with Miss Frye's extensive weaving collection upon her death. The collection is in three major sections. The first is a collection of ancient weaves from all over the world. It is from this grouping that Mrs. Carlisle will show examples.

The second section is contemporary weaving samples; this includes Miss Frye's own works and samples by her students from all parts of the United States. The samples collection is housed in a memorial room at the Thousand Islands Museum and Craft School in Clayton, New York.

The third collection is a large library of weaving books, some of which are very old and unique. The two collections, ancient weaves and books, still in the care of the Carlisles will at a future date be placed in museums.

One of Miss Frye's outstanding works, a memorial tapestry to her sister Marie, "The Wise and Foolish Virgins," is housed in the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Corsicana, Texas.

During the past summer a national scholarship for the promotion of the weaving arts was established by the major weaving magazine "Shuttle, Spindle, and Dye" in memory of Berta Frye. The Board of Directors in charge of the fund is composed of nationally known weavers. In December near the anniversary of Miss Frye's death a memorial article will be published in "Shuttle, Spindle, and Dye."

Last spring a group called the Woodstock Weavers was organized in memory of Miss Frye. Most of the founders of this group had been students of hers. The club purpose is to extend interest in the textile arts. Weaving is the primary hobby of many members of the club. Monthly meetings, usually held at the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen, may involve speakers or be a workshop. The club is organized under the leadership of Chairman Mrs. Gordon Taylor, Co-Chairmen Mrs. James Chase and Mrs. Iona Plath, Secretary Mrs. S. James Matthews, and Treasurer Mrs. Robert Carlson. Club membership, now numbering about 24, is open to any area women interested in textile arts.

The Woman's Club is fortunate to be able to view some of the rare and beautiful pieces in the Berta Frye weaving collection at the upcoming meeting. Guests are invited.

Ways and Means Chairman Mrs. Robert Anderson announces that the Bring and Buy Auction had to be postponed at the last meeting and will be held this month instead. More items for the auction would be most welcome and can be brought to the meeting. The auction promises to be lively and fun. Mrs. Donald Simmons will be auctioneer.

New and used books may be given to Mrs. Albert Carl, chairman of the Literature and Music Department, who will take the books to the Neighborhood Service Center for distribution.

Elegant Seafood Chowders to Set Before Your Guests

A bowl of hot soup can be as glamorous a dish as any gourmet delicacy.

Bourride, for instance, is a good satisfying French fish chowder beautiful enough to set before your favorite guests. It's somewhat like bouillabaisse except that Bourride is a white version, without the saffron and tomatoes.

This delicately flavored chowder is made with two types of fish — cod and haddock — boiled with onion, white wine, a bouquet garni of herbs with orange peel, and Tabasco pepper sauce to accentuate the delicious flavor blend.

After simmering, the broth is strained and the fish put aside. One cup of Aioli is stirred into the broth. This is a mayonnaise, garlic and lemon juice mixture that imparts a smooth creamy texture to the Bourride, as well as adding flavor. As the broth is heated again, the reserved fish is flaked and returned to the soup.

Bourride is served over toasted French bread and topped with Rouille, a highly seasoned mixture of chopped pimiento, bread crumbs, Tabasco pepper sauce and minced garlic.

Bourride can be a meal in itself — and a very unique one at that!

Orange Crab Gumbo is another seafood dish that'll be a favorite for lunch or dinner. Ingredients like okra, fresh tomatoes, orange juice, crab and rice are stirred into a skillet at varying times and simmered to blend with the flavors of onion, garlic, bay leaf, parsley, thyme and Tabasco pepper sauce. The result is a fresh tasting seafood soup brightened with a hint of citrus flavor.

Bourride

One pound cod filets, cut in large chunks
One pound haddock filets, cut in large chunks

One medium onion, chopped
Bouquet garni (one bay leaf, three sprigs parsley, one-fourth teaspoon fennel, one-fourth teaspoon thyme, orange peel from half an orange, tied in cheesecloth bag)

One cup dry white wine
Three cups water
One teaspoon salt
One-fourth teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

In a medium saucepan combine all ingredients. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Remove cheesecloth bag and strain broth, reserving fish. To one cup Aioli* add small amount of broth. Return Aioli to remaining broth and stir to mix well. Heat over very low heat. Do not boil or soup will curdle. Flake poached fish and return to soup. To serve, pour over toasted French bread and serve with Rouille**.

YIELD: Six cups.

*Aioli

One cup mayonnaise
One clove garlic, crushed

One-fourth teaspoon lemon juice
Mix all ingredients. Let stand for 10 minutes to develop flavors.

**Rouille

One can (seven ounces) pimiento, drained and chopped
Two tablespoons fresh bread crumbs
One-fourth teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

One clove garlic, minced
Mix all ingredients.

Orange Crab Gumbo

One-third cup finely chopped salt pork (two ounces)

One and one-half cups chopped onion

One clove garlic, crushed

One package (10 ounces) frozen cut okra, thawed

One and one-half pounds (four or five medium) tomatoes, peeled, cut in wedges

One cup Florida orange juice

Two cups water

One bay leaf

Two tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

One-half teaspoon dried leaf thyme

One-fourth teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

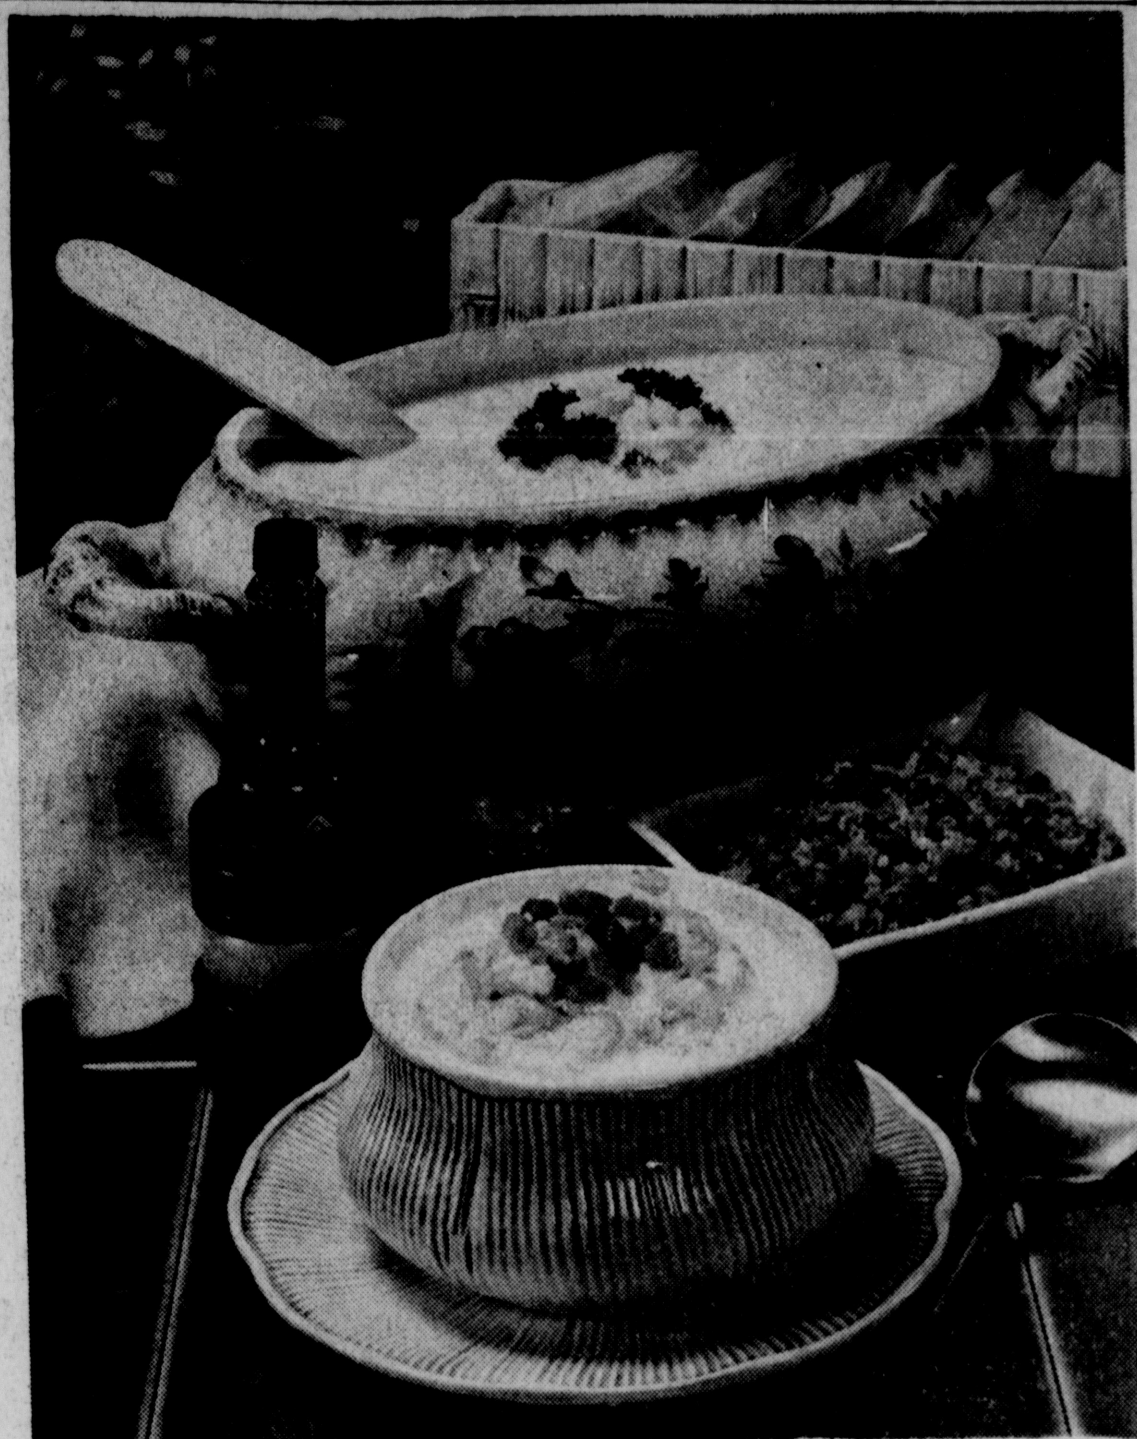

One and one-half teaspoons salt

One chicken bouillon cube

Three packages (six ounces each) frozen crab, thawed, or one pound cooked shrimp or lobster

Three cups hot cooked rice

In a large skillet cook salt pork over low heat until it is brown and fat has melted off. Add onion, garlic and okra. Simmer until tender. Add remaining ingredients except crab and rice, bring to a boil, then simmer over low heat for 45 minutes. Add crab and heat. Serve in soup plates, over rice.
YIELD: Six servings.

BOURRIDE, a beautiful fish chowder, is served over toasted French bread and topped with Rouille, a seasoned bread crumb mixture.

Ripe Olives Add French Accent to Beef Stew

BAKED BEEF, RIPE OLIVE STEW

The creative French chefs have long used ripe olives with meat and now California brings you state grown and canned ripe olives to add that special flavor and color accent to a beef stew.

With meat prices causing much conversation and budget adjusting, it is the wise homemaker that finds a delicious addition to extend the meat in a favorite dish. Pitted, canned ripe olives will do just this. They have a meaty texture that adds chewiness to a dish in which they are included and so add more eating appeal to a beef stew while adding a certain note of elegance.

For these chilly days, a well seasoned, interesting stew is both a family and company meal. An accompanying contrast of orange and canned jellied cranberry slices served on a bed of crisp greens makes a cool salad. For the finale, the fall favorite pie — pumpkin — can be served with a large dollop of whipped cream or a less caloric topping as you wish.

The versatility of the California ripe olive can be shown in many other dishes from a hearty meal soup to a leftover turkey casserole. Just choose from the variety of available sizes for the specific use. The larger pitted or unpitted ripe olives are suggested for snacks and relish use while the smaller and less expensive sizes are quite satisfying for ingredient needs.

Baked Beef, Ripe Olive Stew

Three-fourths cup canned pitted California ripe olives

Two and one-half pounds boneless lean beef chuck

Two tablespoons cooking oil

One-fourth teaspoon crushed garlic

One-half cup beef broth

One-half cup red table wine or water

One-fourth cup tomato puree

One-fourth cup liquor from ripe olives

One and one-half teaspoons salt

One small stalk celery

One sprig parsley

One-half bay leaf

One-fourth teaspoon tarragon

One whole clove

Twelve small boiling onions

Two medium-size carrots

One tablespoon cornstarch

One tablespoon cold water

Drain ripe olives; save one-fourth cup canned ripe olive liquor. Preheat oven to 300 degrees F. Cut beef in one and one-half-inch cubes. Heat oil. Add beef and brown slowly in oil. Add garlic, broth, wine or water, tomato puree, one-fourth cup olive liquor and salt. Heat to boiling. Tie celery, parsley, bay leaf, tarragon and clove in small piece of cheesecloth, and add to the beef. Cover; bake in preheated oven for one hour. Meanwhile, peel onions; scrape carrots and cut into one and one-half inch chunks. Add onions, carrots and ripe olives to the meat and bake one hour longer, until vegetables and meat are tender. Remove herbs and spices in cheesecloth from stew mixture. Mix cornstarch and cold water until smooth; stir into liquid on meat. Cook about five minutes longer, stirring constantly, until mixture has thickened slightly. Makes eight servings.

Food Tips

Drain two 17-ounce cans yams or sweet potatoes and place in a nine-inch pie plate. Spoon two cups canned apple sauce on top. Sprinkle with one-quarter cup melted butter, one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg and one-half cup chopped California walnuts. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Good with ham... or hamburgers.

At Thanksgiving dinner, the tablecloth sometimes seems doomed. But if stains are treated while still fresh, generally they can be removed. Here are some suggested methods for treating the most common holiday-type stains:

Fruit stains including cranberries: Soak the area in warm water and enzyme pre-soak, then launder. If necessary and color and fabric permit, launder again with a chlorine bleach.

Gravy or milk: Use an enzyme pre-soak with cool water or make a paste of detergent and water and work that into the stain. Then launder. Should the stain remain, use a dry-cleaning solvent.

Wine or soft drinks: Soak with an oxygen bleach in the hottest water safe for the fabric, then launder. If necessary, launder again with a chlorine bleach.

Coffee or tea: Soak in hot water with enzyme pre-soak or oxygen bleach. Then launder, and, if the stain is not removed, launder again using chlorine bleach if the color and fabric of the tablecloth permit.

Candle Wax: Scrape off as much as possible, then place the stain between paper towels and press with a warm iron. Next place the stain face downward on paper towels and sponge the back with dry cleaning solvent. Let dry, then launder. If the stain remains, launder again with an oxygen bleach. If the spot is still not removed and color and fabric type permit, launder finally with a chlorine bleach.

A few general hints are to 1) test any stain remover on a corner of fabric first, 2) do not add chlorine bleach to an enzyme pre-soak product, and 3) treat spots from the back of the fabric. Place the spot downward on some paper towels so that the stain will come off the fabric instead of going through it.

FALL BRINGS PORK AND APPLES

Fall brings a new apple harvest to market and more plentiful supplies of pork than we had during summer. Shoppers can expect prices for pork and apples to be higher than a year ago, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist.

Less pork this fall — Although supplies of pork have been increasing seasonally from their summer ebb, forecasters predict that there will be about two per cent less pork this fall than last. Much of the fall pig crop is made up of light-weight hogs. It will take longer to bring these animals up to market weight. By winter, supplies may improve somewhat. If farmers' intentions materialize, by next spring there may be as many hogs ready to market as the year before.

Pork prices may have dropped a little from their summer highs, but shoppers should not expect to find any major price declines for pork this fall. Instead, look for specials featured on some pork cuts.

Although Americans eat more beef than pork, the amount of pork we eat continues to increase yearly. Last year we consumed an average of 73 pounds of pork per person compared with 59 pounds per person in 1965.

Plenty of apples for autumn — Apples are one of the few bright spots in a gloomy fruit situation. After a summer with sharply smaller supplies of several fruits, including freestone peaches, sweet cherries, and apricots, shoppers will find an abundance of fresh, crisp apples at the markets. Current estimates for the total United States apple crop are two per cent higher than the amount utilized last year. This is the fourth consecutive year that apple growers have produced a large crop. Overall quality and color of this year's crop look more promising than in recent years.

Production in the East is expected to be about as large as last year, although New York anticipates about eight per cent more apples. The western states expect about nine per cent more apples. Washington, the leading apple state in the nation, expects a crop one-fourth larger than a year ago.

Red and Golden Delicious lead the apple roster — The leading apple varieties, Red Delicious and Golden Delicious, are expected to be more abundant this year than last. Red Delicious represent about 30 per cent of the total apple supply. Production of Red Delicious is expected to be up about five per cent. Golden Delicious make up about 14 per cent of the apple crop. Production of these versatile apples is anticipated to be 10 per cent above a year ago.

Most other varieties, such as McIntosh, Rome, Baldwin, Rhode Island Greening, Cortland, Northern Spy, and Winesap, are expected to be somewhat less plentiful than last year.

People can't easily buy what you have, if they don't know you have it.

A Happy Farewell To Denver Olympics

DENVER (UPI)—The State of Colorado says good-bye today to the 1976 Winter Olympics. 520,404 to 345,077 vote. Only six counties voted in favor of the games, 53 were opposed, and four counties were still in the undecided column.

"It's a sad day for Colorado," said Hank Kimbrough, who directed the pro-Olympic campaign. "I've had blocks of calls from all over the world. They just can't understand it."

Denver Mayor William McNichols also was bitter about the loss and blamed it on the "venomous attack" of "people who didn't want to hear the facts. I think they'll regret it."

There was no possibility that an effort would be made to keep the games in Colorado by paying for them with private funds.

"In the face of an overwhelming vote—and both the governor and the mayor have indicated agreement—it would not be proper to try to hold the games, even if the money were somehow available," said DOOC president Carl Temple.

Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a Denver resident, called it "a tragedy for the state and to some degree for the nation."

But foes of the Olympics, led by Citizens for Colorado's Future (CCF), didn't see it that way. They began work last year to defeat the measure, even though more than $2.5 million of tax money and private funds already had been spent on the games.

"They (the DOOC) tried the same old tactic of stuffing something down the voter's throat, but they found people are tired of being told what to do," said CCF coordinator John Farr. "They're ready to make their own decisions."

Higginbotham acted on an antitrust suit filed against the NHL by John McKenzie, former Boston Bruins star who signed a contract as player-coach of the Philadelphia Blazers of the WHA.

All suits involving contract disputes between the two leagues have been consolidated before Higginbotham.

Bobby Hull is the only former NHL star who has not been playing for his new WHA team. Hull, a former Chicago Black Hawks star who signed with the Winnipeg Jets, was prevented from playing by a Cook County Court injunction.

Higginbotham's injunction also affected the standing of Derek Sanderson and Bernie Parent of the Blazers and Gerry Cheevers of the Cleveland Crusaders.

The judge dismissed NHL arguments that professional baseball is exempt from regulation by noting that the PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—In a ruling that probably spells the beginning of the end of the National Hockey League's reserve clause, a federal judge has ordered the NHL not to take legal actions against players who jumped to the new World Hockey Association.

Declaring that the NHL's "fundamental motive is the making of money," U.S. District Judge A. Leon Higginbotham said Wednesday the league's reserve clause should be subject to regulation under federal antitrust laws.

Higginbotham issued a temporary injunction that will permit superstars like Bobby Hull and Derek Sanderson to earn their huge WHA salaries without fear of legal retribution from the NHL.

The injunction prohibited the NHL from suing players for violating the reserve clause in their NHL contracts.

"The basic factors here are not the sheet exhilaration from observing the speeding puck, but the desire to maximize the available buck," Higginbotham wrote in a 124-page opinion.

Higginbotham called for further hearings to determine whether the WHA was right in asserting the NHL reserve clause is an "unreasonable restraint of trade" in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

He said he issued the temporary injunction because of the "clear and substantial likelihood" the reserve clause violates Section 2 by providing the NHL with a monopoly on professional hockey talent.

The NHL reserve clause binds a player to a team for life unless he is traded, sold or released.

Hull, who scored his first National Hockey League hat trick.

The sturdy, 185-pound left wing for Chicago scored his first two goals of the season in the third period when the Black Hawks rallied for all of their goals in a 6-1 victory over the New York Islanders Wednesday night. But with a chance to add a third goal late in the game, he passed off instead to Cliff Koroll.

"I wasn't really thinking about the hat trick then," Maloney said later. "I looked up and saw Koroll standing at the corner of the net and he had a much better shot than I had, so I gave it to him. I probably would have missed anyway."

Koroll took full advantage of the pass to score Chicago's fifth goal of the period, and Maloney didn't lose out for his selfish play as he wound up with a hat trick anyway by scoring the final goal with only 2:05 left to play.

It was a disappointing end for the Islanders, who took a 1-0 lead into the final period on Eddie Westfall's fifth goal of the season early in the second period. But the Hawks, who outshot New York 24-11 over the first two periods, finally started getting to Islander goalie Gerry Desjardins.

Desjardins played really well, but he couldn't stop everything," Koroll said. "We

U.S. Supreme Court has held that "other sports—football, boxing, basketball and presumably hockey and golf—and not exempt."

The judge required the WHA to post a $2.5 million bond to put the temporary injunction into effect.

He said he ordered the bond because the injunction "could cause some damage to the NHL if my ruling is wrong or is reversed by an appellate court."

He said that without injunction relief stars like Sanderson, Hull and McKenzie "would suffer immediate irreparable and noncompensable harm."

Hull Plays, Team Loses

By United Press International Bobby Hull made his World Hockey Association debut Wednesday night and who should be there to greet him but an old friend—the shadow. The shadow is the device used by National Hockey League coaches in recent years to control Hull, one of the most explosive goal scorers in hockey. It consists in having a player follow Hull constantly on the ice.

Hull, who jumped to the WHA earlier this season, had been prevented from playing by a court order. He finally was granted permission to play Wednesday but could only contribute an assist as the Winnipeg Jets, the club he also coaches, dropped a 2-1 verdict to the Quebec Nordiques.

Pierre Roy scored for Quebec after only 21 seconds of play and Dunc Rousseau tied it for Winnipeg less than nine minutes later. Jean Payette put Quebec ahead to stay two minutes later and Yves Bergeron scored the third goal in the second period. Hull assisted on a goal by Danny Johnson with just five seconds left in the game.

In the only other action, Jarda Kriepka, playing in his first WHA game, scored with 34 seconds left to give the Los Angeles Sharks a 2-1 victory over the New York Raiders. Kriepka, a native of Switzerland, just called up from the Eastern Hockey League, tipped in a shot after the Sharks' Mike Byers had matched an earlier goal by New York's Norm Ferguson.

Maloney: Hat Trick

By United Press International Dan Maloney deserves a tip of the hat for the way he got his first National Hockey League hat trick.

The sturdy, 185-pound left wing for Chicago scored his first two goals of the season in the third period when the Black Hawks rallied for all of their goals in a 6-1 victory over the New York Islanders Wednesday night. But with a chance to add a third goal late in the game, he passed off instead to Cliff Koroll.

"I wasn't really thinking about the hat trick then," Maloney said later. "I looked up and saw Koroll standing at the corner of the net and he had a much better shot than I had, so I gave it to him. I probably would have missed anyway."

Koroll took full advantage of the pass to score Chicago's fifth goal of the period, and Maloney didn't lose out for his selfish play as he wound up with a hat trick anyway by scoring the final goal with only 2:05 left to play.

It was a disappointing end for the Islanders, who took a 1-0 lead into the final period on Eddie Westfall's fifth goal of the season early in the second period. But the Hawks, who outshot New York 24-11 over the first two periods, finally started getting to Islander goalie Gerry Desjardins.

Desjardins played really well, but he couldn't stop everything," Koroll said. "We had our chances, and when you're playing in bad luck the thing to do is keep trying because it's going to go in sooner or later."

The triumph lifted Chicago into undisputed possession of second place in the West Division, three points behind the Los Angeles Kings, who scored twice in the final four minutes of play to salvage a 3-3 tie against the Atlanta Flames. The Montreal Canadiens maintained their five-point advantage over the runnerup Rangers in the East by beating the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 while New York was whipping the Vancouver Canucks by an identical 5-2 score.

The two other games in the NHL also resulted in 5-2 decisions with the Pittsburgh Penguins beating the Philadelphia Flyers and the Minnesota North Stars beating the California Golden Seals.

Gilles Marotte scored at 16:28 of the third period and Mike Corrigan got the tie for Los Angeles with only 35 seconds remaining. Despite the happy ending, the Kings had their club record eight-game winning streak broken.

Peter Mahovlich scored two of Montreal's three goals in the final period, the second one going into an empty net, as the Canadiens won for the 10th time against only one loss and four ties. Both of Mahovlich's goals came on shots from just inside the blueline, and he said it's a shot he practices often.

Valley Bids For '76 Games

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Squaw Valley, which hosted the 1960 winter Olympics, would be "more than happy" to host the 1976 games, according to the head of a firm which operates the Sierra ski resort.

Alexander C. Cushing, president of the Squaw Valley Development Corp. which owns the valley's major facilities, issued the statement Wednesday after Colorado voters rejected plans to finance the 1976 winter games in Denver with public funds.

"If the world wants to come to Squaw Valley, we would be more than happy to welcome them here," Cushing said in the statement released by his firm. Cushing was out of state on business.

Hans Von Nolde, the firm's public relations director, said if the international Olympic Committee next week asks other cities to bid for the games, "we'll very definitely be interested."

Von Nolde said Squaw Valley, just west of Lake Tahoe, should have the "inside track" among possible U. S. sites for getting the games because "the best Olympics ever held were held in Squaw Valley."

Lake Placid, N.Y., has been mentioned as a possible U.S. site. The United States celebrates its bicentennial in 1976.

Von Nolde said he foresees no opposition from local residents for holding the Olympics in Squaw Valley.

"The people loved the 1960 Olympics here," he said. "It put this area on the map."

Cushing was a leader in the effort to bring the 1960 Olympics to Squaw Valley.

William Briner, a Placer County Supervisor and a member of the two-state Tahoe Regional Planning Association, said he will ask the Placer County Supervisors to endorse the Olympics for Squaw Valley. He also said a bill will be submitted to the California State Legislature, which reconvenes Thursday, asking for its endorsement.

Briner estimated that a minimal state expenditure of $1 to $2 million will be needed plus the $15 million the federal government promised Colorado to put Squaw Valley into shape. Part of the money, he said, would be used to build a 35-mile high speed transit system from Truckee to Lake Tahoe.

Most observers believe Squaw Valley has the best ski complex in the United States with existing provisions for all Alpine events, an ice rink and Olympic Village.

He was activated for the first time last Sunday but saw no action. He did not take calisthenics with the team then, Coach Harland Svare, walked along the sidelines. "Obviously, he's got some problems that won't permit him to play now."

Fisk, Rader, Tidrow, Matlack Tabbed

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Catchers Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox and Dave Rader of the San Francisco Giants won the Sporting News rookie-of-the-year awards Wednesday in a poll of major league players.

Pitching choices were right-hander Dick Tidrow of the Indians in the American League and southpaw Jon Matlack of the Mets in the national.

Fisk's selection by the players marked only the second time since the national sports weekly began rookie awards in 1946 that an American League catcher had won the honor.

Rader, however, is the third

National League backstop to earn the rookie citation in the past five years, the weekly said.

The Sporting News also said Boston's Luis Tiant, in the American League and Cincinnati's Bobby Tolan in the National League earned come back awards.

Celts Running... 76'ers Stumbling

By United Press International

The Boston Celtics ran their way into first place Wednesday night while the Philadelphia 76ers moved to within striking distance of a dubious National Basketball Association record.

The Celtics got their fast-break going in the second period and outscored Golden State 77-55 over the next two periods to beat the Warriors 128-111. John Havlicek scored 25 points, Don Chaney 23 and Paul Silas 20 as Boston scored its 11th victory in 12 games and moved a half-game ahead of idle New York in the Atlantic Division. Rick Barry had 34 points to lead the Warriors.

Winless Philadelphia, meanwhile, dropped its 14th straight game, one short of the league record for defeats at the start of a season. Nate Archibald, despite a sprained thumb, had 34 points and 18 assists to rally the Kansas City Omaha Kings over the 76ers, who have failed to jell under new coach Roy Rubin.

The 76ers, who were led by John Block's 35 points, took an early 12-point lead but Archibald and Pat Riley, who had 23, helped whittle it down.

In other NBA action, Phoenix downed Cleveland 107-99, Baltimore bombed Buffalo 126-94 and Milwaukee beat Seattle 116 in 12 games and moved a half-game ahead of idle New York in the Atlantic Division. Rick Barry had 34 points to lead the Warriors.

Elvin Hayes hit 12 of his season-high 25 points in the last eight minutes to give Baltimore its triumph over Buffalo and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 20 points helped Milwaukee beat Seattle, the Bucks' 10th victory in 12 games.

Pacers Banking On McGinnis

By United Press International

George McGinnis showed Indiana Pacers feel he's one of the rising superstars of the American Basketball Association.

McGinnis, a second-year pro out of Indiana University, scored 35 points Wednesday night to lead the Pacers to a 125-124 victory over the Utah Stars and first place in the ABA's Western Division.

Indiana broke open the game with a 42-point third period for a half-game lead in the West. Mel Daniels added 24 and Roger Brown 22 for Indiana, including three three-point field goals. James Jones led Utah with 32.

In other ABA action, Carolina beat Kentucky 126-111, Virginia stopped Denver 116-111 and Dallas tripped Memphis 126-111.

Mack Calvin had 33 points and Billy Cunningham 29 to lead the Cougars, the Eastern Division leaders, over Kentucky and Julius Erving's 38-point performance enabled Virginia to beat the Rockets. Rich Jones and Bob Netolicky combined for 45 points in Dallas' triumph over Memphis.

A Happy Ending to Ellie Story?

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON The last hurdle on the long road to the UCAL football title awaits Ellenville High School Saturday. In the form of the Red Hook Raiders, it's the biggest obstacle yet, but don't feel sorry for the Blue Devils — they've come a long way since '71.

Rondout goes to Pine Bush. Highland takes on Liberty. Marlboro visits Onteora, and Wallkill hosts New Paltz in the remaining games on the schedule.

A year ago the Ellies were a 1-8 team, mired in the UCAL's last place. With basically the same personnel, Dave Frank's team has turned it around this year and needs one more win to take at least a piece of the crown.

Experience, speed and aggressiveness have all been a part of the Ellie success story. Whether that will be enough to stop Red Hook worries coach Frank:

"Red Hook uses a moving defense," he said. "That presents more of a strategic than a personnel problem for us. They're well balanced, have a capable quarterback and good running backs, so we'll have to defend the whole field against them."

Frank had a pair of reasons for his caution. One was the Ellenville loss last week to Rondout, a very deflating blow.

The other was scouting reports on Red Hook wins over Rondout and Marlboro. On the other hand, there were some positive things in this remark:

"Rondout was big for us — we won't have that man-to-man disadvantage with Red Hook. We were disappointed after losing Saturday, but we came out of the game physically all right. I know we've surprised a few people this year," he concluded, "we'd just like to surprise them a little more."

Ellenville will meet a team that could have reached juggernaut proportions but for two mid-season letdowns. The Raiders have it all in their arsenal and back it up with one of the steepest defensive units around.

Running backs Gary O'Connor and Bill Reid lead the league's best rushing attack. Quarterback Matt King is the UCAL's top passer. Consistency is the Raider advantage here, and to illustrate, Red Hook has racked up 102 first downs this season — more than twice the Ellies' total.

Red Hook coach John Teillon is a little puzzled by the Blue Devils:

"We scouted them two different weeks, and it was like two different teams. They use a multiple offense like ours and pass quite a bit. . . it's hard to say what will happen, though. With their seniors playing their last game at home there should be some outstanding individual performances. I expect there will be a lot of surprises on the field."

The Raiders have moved on better defenses and contained better attacks, and they'll have a big edge in the rushing game where the Ellies rank only eighth in defense. Stopping Kyle Hoar is the major problem for Neilson's team.

Hoar, Ellenville's quarterback, is one of those homesteading seniors. Though he's been intercepted 12 times this season, he's also hit seven TD passes. Seven long bombs to Steve Tennenbaum, Ray Younger and Ron Storms. Seven bombs that helped win games.

A sustained offense is not quite as important with an instant scoring threat like that.

Ellenville's task will be to keep the score close enough to make that threat a factor. Since the Raiders have been burned that way before, however, the Ellies' chances are slim. This one could be decided in the first half.

Rondout, spurred by the possibility of a tie for first place, should blow Pine Bush off the field. The Bushmen haven't had much luck moving the ball anyway, and against the Ganders the prospect seems almost remote.

In addition, RVC seems to have come up with an offensive solution to their own problems — don't throw. With backs like Bill Wilkins, Tom Elston and Bob Davenport behind a 200 pound line it seems silly anyway to put the ball in the air.

The fourth team with ambitions (though slightly lesser ones) is Highland. The Big Blue can make it as high as second place — quite an accomplishment for this rookie-laden team, if it manages to get by Liberty and the other games turn out to its favor. That won't be easy.

Liberty is big and at home for this one, and although Highland may be the only team around which would care to slug it out, the Redskins appear to have all the momentum they need.

Onteora's last chance couldn't be more favorable. Marlboro has trouble stopping passes, and the Indians may finally meet a team as deflated in spirit as themselves. In fact, the Ducks are further depressed since once upon a time they led this league with an undefeated record.

Injuries and three straight losses put a stop to that. Charlie Jones, however, is a talented quarterback, and should he decide to bow out in glory, the prospect of the cellar could face the Indians.

New Paltz goes for its third win in Walkkill. The Panthers haven't had it up to now, and faced with the power running of Ed Siani don't look to improve their status.

Farmingdale No. 1

SYRACUSE Farmingdale and Pleasantville both seem determined to hold on to their No. 1 positions in the New York State High School grid polls.

Bouyed by a 53-0 win over Port Washington, its seventh straight shutout this season, Farmingdale remained in first place among the large schools. Small school kingpin Pleasantville, also 7-0, had a tougher time sneaking past Briarcliff, 17-8. Ulster County Athletic League teams to gain honorable mention honors this week were

Unbeaten College Ranks Face Pruning on Saturday

There are only five remaining unbeaten and untied teams on the scene, and at least one of those, and possibly two, will fall this weekend.

The remaining unbeaten are top-ranked Southern California, third-ranked Alabama, fourth-ranked Ohio State, fifth-ranked Michigan and sixth-ranked Louisiana State. Either Alabama or Louisiana State will drop from the list this Saturday since the two meet at Birmingham, Ala., and another casualty could well be Ohio State, which meets Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich.

Ten title extremely difficult indeed. Our Midwest forecaster thinks the Buckeyes are due to get beaten. A few cracks in the defense have sprung up over the last few weeks following the rash of injuries and Michigan State has the material to take advantage of such problems.

In the day's big game at Birmingham we like Alabama but not by much.

Our regional forecasters are Fred McMane of New York (the East), David Moffitt of Atlanta (the South), Ed Sainsbury of Chicago (the Midwest), Charlie Smith of Kansas City (the Midlands), Tracy Ringolsby of Denver (the Rockies), Mike Rabun of Dallas (the Southwest) and Joe Sargis of San Francisco (the Far West).

The East
Pittsburgh 23 Navy 17—Panthers are ready to spring another upset.
Syracuse 21 Army 7—Cadets are due for a letdown after last week, and they've had trouble against teams that can run the ball.
Penn St. 27 North Carolina St. 23—Lions are in for a real struggle. Wolfpack has one of the nation's best-balanced offenses.

Yale 28 Penn 22—This could go either way if Penn's Adolph Bellizeare has one of his days.
Also—Harvard 10 over Princeton, Columbia 6 over Dartmouth, Cornell 14 over Brown.

The South
Alabama 17 Louisiana St. 14—Crimson Tide on threshold of second straight perfect regular season and a return trip to the Orange Bowl.

Florida 21 Georgia 17—Gators have superior offense.
Kentucky 14 Vanderbilt 7—Home field decides battle of have-nots.

North Carolina 24 Virginia 10—Tarheels heading for second straight ACC title.
Also—Duke 21 over Wake Forest, Georgia Tech 14 over Boston College, Clemson 7 over Maryland, Virginia Tech 10 over South Carolina, Florida State 18 over Tulsa, West Virginia 27 over VMI.

The Midwest
Illinois 14 Indiana 10—Two in a row for the luckless Illini.
Michigan 48 Iowa 7—Wolfpacks have to sharpen up and they will.
Michigan St. 24 Ohio St. 21—This could be the day the Buckeyes get it.

Minnesota 21 Northwestern 10—Gophers have to beat somebody.
Purdue 28 Wisconsin 20—Badgers are hurting.
Also—Northern Illinois 6 over Fresno State, Western Michigan 17 over Ball State, Bowling Green 10 over Dayton, Miami (O.) 3 over Kent St., Louisville 10 over Southern Illinois, Toledo 24 over Marshall.

The Midlands
Nebraska 28 Iowa St. 10—Cornhuskers are rolling at full throttle now.
Oklahoma 38 Missouri 17—One of the more interesting games of the season because of Missouri's turn-around and history of playing well against the Sooners.

Colorado 37 Kansas 14—Buffaloes have too much manpower.
Oklahoma St. 17 Kansas St.

13—A battle of team fighting downhill slides.
The Southwest
Texas 20 Baylor 8—Longhorns can expect some trouble from the Bears who are still in contention for the SWC title.
Rice 19 Arkansas 10—A bit of an upset here, but the Razorbacks show signs of disintegrating.

Texas A&M 16 SMU 6—Mustangs will have a tough time getting emotionally ready after their loss to Texas last Saturday.

For Kingston High — A Goal of Sorts

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON
By no stretch of the imagination can Kingston High School's home football game with Our Lady of Lourdes Saturday be considered important.

Neither team is going anywhere in the Dutchess County Scholastic League race. Lourdes can't finish with a winning record and the Maroons need to win this one and next week's finale against Poughkeepsie to stay above water.

It doesn't make for a very exciting afternoon. "Lourdes isn't one of the tougher teams on the schedule," says KHS coach Tony Badalato. "But it can be tough, especially if we don't get up for the game, and the players do seem to be a bit down after last week."

But Bada also feels the possibility of winning more games than it loses should be enough of an incentive for the Kingston squad.

"We want to have back to back winning seasons," he says. "I think it's been some time since a Kingston team has done that."

It has indeed. Daily Freeman records show that Kingston had three straight winning years from 1956 through 1958 when Maroon teams posted seasons of 8-0, 7-0, and 7-0-1.

A 4-4 mark in 1955 broke up what would have been a remarkable string since KHS had nine consecutive plus .500 seasons from 1946 to 1954. Thus, if 1955 had been a winner, Kingston would have posted a streak of 13 years.

The current Maroons are not battling it out with Arlington and Ketcham, but fighting with history. Should KHS beat both Lourdes and Poughkeepsie, the Maroons will wind up 5-4 to back up last year's 6-3.

Some of the fair-weather fans among Kingston's backers have criticized Badalato along the way this year. In particular they've pushed for a change at quarterback in recent games. However the KHS coach is sticking with senior Walt Houghtaling as well as the others who have brought the Maroons this far.

The injury situation has its bright side with defensive back Jeff Longendyke returning following a two-week layoff due to a knee ailment. But the dark side overshadows it since safety Gerald Clingman (bad knee) is definitely out for the year as is lineman Ray DeSimone (dislocated shoulder). They join Tim Pillsworth, who had been officially shelved last week with hemoraging in the thigh.

Lourdes enters the game fresh from a 39-0 trouncing at the hands of Saugerties, a game in which Warrior coach Dick Beams claimed his team "stunk."

It seems that the Poughkeepsie team has stunk more often than not, winning only over John Jay, and who hasn't done that so far? But Beams thought his club would be stronger, as did many other DCSL observers, so the Warriors can't be taken too lightly.

At stake for Lourdes is a chance to move into a tie with Kingston, and pull further away from Jay, thus sealing the Pats' basement fate. At stake for Kingston is its battle with history.

Arlington, with Larry Riley running and Kevin Kelly passing, is expected to beat Ketcham in Wappingers Falls Saturday and take the lead in the DCSL. The winner clinches at least a tie for the title and should have little trouble grabbing it all since Arlington concludes with Roosevelt and Ketcham has Lourdes in the finale.

If the impossible happens, Saugerties and Beacon will be alive. The Sawyers are at Roosevelt this week for their league-ender. A win would give Saugerties a strong 6-2 mark. Beacon is off this week and concludes with Jay next week.

Maroons and Arlington In 6-6 Jayvee Standoff

KINGSTON
A 38-yard touchdown pass from Dan Brown to Steve Mehic in the third quarter enabled Kingston High's JV football team to come from behind and tie Arlington, 6-6.

The six points were the first tallies scored against the previously unbeaten-untied little Admirals this season.

Arlington had taken the lead in the second quarter on a 28-yard touchdown pass. But KHS rallied in the third quarter and had the visitors with their backs to the wall in the fourth period only to fail on an attempt to win.

It too can finish 6-2. Should the winner of the Arlington-Ketcham game lose next week, unlikely as that may be, Arlington, Ketcham, Beacon, and Saugerties would tie for first place.

A four-way tie for first? Impossible, you say? Well, the DCSL just happened to have had a four-way tie for first place last season!

Your Horoscope

Friday November 10

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning is good for all kinds of new beginnings, travel matters, or changes. However, in the evening you feel better and get the support of a highly placed man.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Plan early what you are going to do with regard to some career or community matter, and then go through with it quickly. Come to a better understanding with the one you love. Comprehend civic matters better.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You can now widen your horizons, so take steps quickly to do so and get good results. Cement better relations with a fine partner. This is not a good time for recreational matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You can handle those responsibilities in a most efficient way now, so get an early start. Your best hunches come in the morning. Follow them. Get the backing of a co-worker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Plan early to join congenials you really like at the recreations that are mutually pleasurable. Follow through on a plan for better understanding with mate. Do not procrastinate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Morning is best time for that work you need to do, so don't delay. Afternoon is good for taking care of home affairs that are pressing. Put that plan across that will solve a difficult problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Plan early to see charming friends during a.m., then the evening is fine for talking over with partner ways to have more success in the future. You can lighten your spirits in ways that appeal to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Don't be afraid to state what you think should be done at home with kin, then you can make everything there more harmonious, add to holdings. Make the repairs there that are necessary and increase comfort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Make those appointments early that will bring you the results you want of a financial nature, or property-wise. Don't neglect to shop, communicate via letters, telephone, etc. Show you are thorough in discussions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You can formulate a new plan with a specialist that can be very fine for both of you and make your life more pleasant. Your hunches are good, so follow them. Take good care of your health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Pleasing others in business or social circles can bring excellent results now. Show you are thoughtful and gracious. Get the advice of a good pal on how to gain the favor of a bigwig. Follow through on it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can make those plans now with good friends that will be helpful to all concerned. Do the work that is necessary willingly. Consult with a bigwig before taking definite action, though.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Some personal matter that means a good deal to you is best handled with the aid of an older but wiser person. Find the right angles to use. Stop being so gullible.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those interesting young people who early in life wants to have top place in the community, in field of endeavor. It would be wise to plan the education so that such a pinnacle can be reached, if humanly possible. Property management and finances are best here as outlets, or any of the high professions, such as medicine, law, salesmanship etc. Give good spiritual training early.

TEEN FORUM

AGE GAPS: (Comment) I strongly disagree with the answer you gave the 16-year-old girl who wanted to go with the guy who was 23 and had a criminal record. You said his age and his record made him a poor prospect.

I don't think age should come between people. I think it is how much understanding and love there is between two people. By the way she wrote. I could tell that she loves him very much and I believe he could love her just as much if only he had the chance.

I am 15 and I go with a guy who is 20. My parents have deadlines and I abide by them. If I mess up and come in late or am not where I say I am I will get punished, although this has never happened.

We have great times and get along just great. We have been going together for a little over a year now. No one told us that the age difference was too great. So much for the "too old" bit.

As for the criminal record, I think it is great for a girl to be understanding and loving to a person who really needs to be loved and understood. If everyone felt toward this guy as you (and many others, I'm sure) do, how is he supposed to make a life for himself, knowing these people are against him because he was in the penitentiary?

He needs another chance and the only way he is going to get it is through the people as a whole—a girl with a heart in New Hampshire.

(A) You may be more mature than the average 15-year-old girl. I hope you are, because you are taking quite a chance in going seriously with a 20-year-old.

In giving advice I have to consider the way the world is. Most 20-year-old young men want to go with young women about their own age. Those who want to go with girls five years younger are different. They may be different for one reason or for another. Some of the reasons are not good.

It is similar with a 23-year-old man who wants to go with a 16-year-old girl. There is always the question, why? Sometimes the girl finds out the answer. Sometimes she gets hurt in the process of finding out.

I agree that a person who has been in prison needs another chance if he genuinely wants it. As you say, the people as a whole owe him a chance. But a 16-year-old girl is not the people as a whole. She is a 16-year-old girl—and very vulnerable.

Facts of Life Come to TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The facts of life have come to television.

In a single week Mary Tyler Moore spent the night with a man over at CBS. Hal Holbrook played a homosexual in "That Certain Summer" for ABC. And NBC's "The Bold Ones" presented a story of lesbian love in "A Very Strange Triangle."

It was a very strange week. The tube, for better or worse, is exploring areas heretofore reserved for the movies.

Unlike big screen stories, however, the television invasion of sex is unaccompanied by rampant nudity and lasciviousness.

Perry LaFerty, a CBS vice president for programming, says, "These subjects have been explored before. The very fact they were done at all made them unusual."

"Now these stories are being treated in more depth. The shows are not relying on shock value alone. More thoughtful and thought-provoking stories have been the result."

"Dramatic shows have gone much further along the road to maturity than comedy shows. We did an abortion story 10 years ago. And only two years ago we did a homosexual story on 'Medical Center.'"

What About Mary?

Yeah, but what about Mary Tyler Moore not getting home from a date until 8:30 in the morning?

"I didn't see that episode," LaFerty said.

Mary Richards, the girl Miss Moore plays in the series, is over 30 years old, single and sexy. When her parents moved to town they checked up on Mary and her boyfriend.

They were horrified last week to discover Mary didn't spend the night in her apartment. Neither did she explain where she had been except to say she had a date.

Did Mary sit up all night writing her memoirs at the office?

Was she visiting a sick friend?

We'll never know. But viewers were led to believe that Mary had indeed spent an entire night in the company of an attractive man somewhere in Minneapolis or even St. Paul.

To regular viewers this was a bit more shocking than two women in love with one another in "A Very Strange Triangle" or the two men in love with one another in "That Certain Summer."

Adults are aware that homosexuality exists. Both shows handled the subject delicately. Also both shows came on at an hour when youngsters were in bed.

A Shocker

But Mary Tyler Moore spending an entire night in the company of a man is a shocker. It may be a first in situation comedy. Even the lowbrow halfwits of "All in the Family" don't do those things.

What Happened to McGovern . . .

Giveaway, Eagleton Fatal Flaws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's quest for the White House was doomed by the blunders of its infancy, errors that all his campaigning could never undo.

To the end they plagued his candidacy. And in the end they helped President Nixon attain one of history's great land-slides.

In part, the fatal flaws stemmed from what McGovern had to do—or thought he had to do—to catch up and win the Democratic nomination in the first place.

But two problems stand out above all the rest:

—The admittedly ill-conceived McGovern proposal that every American be given $1,000 by the government. He dropped it, but was never able to forget it. And the Republicans used it to help implant the notion that, if elected, McGovern would give away the money of the workingman to people who refuse to work.

—The case of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, the vice-presidential nominee McGovern deposed—after promising him 1,000 per cent support despite his tardy disclosure of past mental treatments.

Those, and an assortment of other incidents, statements and slipups, enabled Nixon's forces to make McGovern himself the central campaign issue.

That effectively denied him the traditional offensive role of the challenger, and shielded Nixon from the necessity of any intensive personal campaigning to defend his conduct in office.

It was particularly valuable to a president whose own campaign organization had been implicated in the June 17 wire tapping of Democratic national headquarters, and whose top White House aides had been accused of political sabotage and espionage.

And it was particularly frustrating to McGovern, struggling to take the attack, but always forced to defend. Nothing nettled him more than the fact that his own credibility, once rated his greatest asset, was put in question.

It was the image of radicalism on one hand and indecision on the other that appeared the central McGovern problem.

In that situation, McGovern steadily escalated the tone and wording of his attacks on Nixon and, in the process, aggravated the problem. He overstated his case, then had to defend the overstatements.

It was a campaign McGovern began on Jan. 18, 1971, in desperate need of exposure and attention to propel him out of single figures in the public opinion polls. At that point, no one could foresee that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, then the towering favorite for the Democratic nomination, would be toppled in the 1972 primaries.

For a year, McGovern campaigned almost unnoticed. He went through three press secretaries in search of someone who could help him command national attention.

Humphrey of Minnesota in the contest that clinched his spot atop the Democratic ticket.

Humphrey hammered at the issue, called McGovern "the handout candidate," accused him of playing "the politics of deception."

Nixon's Republicans were carefully taking notes.

On Aug. 29, in a Wall Street speech, McGovern dropped the income-grant plan in favor of a federally financed welfare system to provide about $4,000 a year to a needy family of four. Again and again, he said it would give nothing to anybody but to work.

But the old proposal, and the impression it left, never stopped haunting his campaign.

The Eagleton case really began with a question, put by the Missouri senator's account, by Frank Mankiewicz, a top McGovern aide: "Tom, do you have any skeletons rattling around in your closet?"

Eagleton said no, and hours later, on July 13, he was duly nominated to run for vice president with McGovern.

Then, on July 25, the running mates appeared together in Custer, S.D., Eagleton to announce that he had three times been hospitalized for nervous exhaustion and fatigue, and twice had undergone electric shock treatments.

"I am 1,000 per cent for Tom Eagleton and I have no intention of dropping him from the ticket," McGovern said.

But six days later, he did just that, saying that Eagleton's medical history would otherwise come to dominate the campaign.

Long afterwards, McGovern said he believed "the Eagleton thing" was at the root of what had then become his credibility problem. "I've tried to explain to people that a political leader who won't change his mind is really a menace rather than a leader."

"But I think that was the reason," he said.

McGovern acknowledged, too, that he was hurt by the bitterness of the primaries, particularly the Humphrey attacks in California.

With Eagleton off the ticket, McGovern embarked on what could only be damaging, semi-public quest for a replacement.

Only when he came to a candidate with no constituency of his own, Sargent Shriver, did McGovern find a new partner. The Democratic National Committee nominated Shriver on Aug. 8.

There were the highly publicized defections of Democrats for Nixon, notably that of John B. Connally, Nixon's former secretary of the Treasury.

"Good riddance," said McGovern. "We didn't kick Connally out, he left."

But there was evidence that a good many other Democrats were leaving, too, concerned, Connally said, about McGovern's proposed defense posture: the nominee advocated cuts of some $30 billion in defense spending over a three-year period.

McGovern had presented a detailed defense-spending blueprint, a document that had the virtue of telling the voters precisely what he proposed to do.

But it had the political drawback of permitting the Republicans to assert that it would cost jobs, and to churn out figures about where, and how many.

McGovern remained a candidate in search of a theme that would grab the American voter. He never found it.

He said he was especially puzzled as to why the Water-gate sabotage charges didn't take hold. He called Nixon's the most corrupt, wasteful and reckless administration in American history.

What it got him, in his own campaign television appearances, with voters telephoning their questions, was the suggestion that he was mud-slinging, that he changed his mind repeatedly.

AP Analysis

But what was designed to be a six-week Democratic head-start on the campaign became, instead, a time of disarray. Amid the Eagleton case and its aftermath, the flow of campaign donations—never enough—diminished to a trickle. The polls showed McGovern losing ground to Nixon.

There were organizational problems. Starting from nowhere in his drive for the nomination, McGovern had of necessity put together his own organization in the primaries, usually running head-on into the opposition of the party establishment.

That, too, left its scars, notably in Chicago, whose Mayor Richard J. Daley was denied a seat in the convention that nominated McGovern. While Daley came around, some in his organization never appeared to be wholeheartedly behind McGovern.
